KLINE TO QUIT, ESCAPE JAIL

Today

This Is His Day.
Beer, April 3.
Farmers Fight. Bankers Not.
6,370,000 Shares in 2 Days.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

A BOY was born in a small Scotch village, according to tradition, about 372 A. D., more than fifteen hundred years ago. An Irish "king," more accurately described as many kings then were, as "an enterprising pirate," raiding the coast of Britain, took the boy, sixteen years old, to Ireland as a slave, to take care of sheep and swine.

He escaped to Britain, became a priest and returned to Ireland to teach Christianity and the doctrine of the Trinity.

THAT DOCTRINE he illustrated by picking a shamrock and showing the three leaves growing on one stem.

The boy was St. Patrick and this is his day.

He feared no man or devil, not even the proud pagan Irish king on the hill of Tara. That's why he lives in history as typical of the Irish race.

BEER ON April 3, real beer, in casks, bottles, in steins and in "flats" is the news.

Hotels, after years and years of oasis sadness, are buying glasses and more jugs and mugs of a certain kind.

Hopeful young gentlemen are speculating in the stock of concerns that make beer bottles, and Uncle Sam expects to get $150,000,000 a year in the way of taxes.

WINE CONTAINING 3.05 of alcohol is also made legal, but there is no such wine. You cannot buy or drink what does not exist.

Wine growers might make natural wine, as nature creates it when you squeeze juice from grapes, and let it ferment, then extract two-third or three-quarters of the alcohol. But that would not be real wine.

YOU WILL read the President's plan for farm relief, and form your opinion concerning it. It is difficult to help that which is not organized for production, distribution or self-defense.

You see farmers fighting each other in a milk war, one farmer spilling on the ground the milk that belongs to another farmer. You don't see bankers engaged in a money war, spilling each other's money on the ground.

The President is reported to have said, frankly, that he can not guarantee his bill or its results, but at least he will try.

WALL STREET yesterday sold 3,300,000 shares of stock, 230,000 more than the day before, over 6,000,000 shares in two days.

Brokers, who have been walking through the valley of the shadow of the depression, feel almost cheerful.

Bonds, especially railroad bonds, went upward, like a captive balloon with the rope cut. Wheat and cotton also rose.

Stock values have increased by many billions since March 4. Oil stocks alone have increased in value more than two hundred and eleven millions.

Nevertheless, do not forget or despise warnings against gambling.

THE LEAGUE of Nations, with Ramsay MacDonald leading, criticizes Mr. Hitler's new defiant Germany without exactly contradicting Germany's statement that unless Germany is treated fairly the world is headed for destruction, like the swine that went over the cliff.

MacDonald worries because he can see no way to keep commercial or "civil" airships from sudden conversion to war purposes. There is no way, of course. Any airship can drop bombs that will explode and poison gas that will make life in a city impossible.

MacDonald will visit Mussolini in Rome, and their conversation will be interesting, but private. Mussolini's courage and will power saved Italy from chaos after the big war. It is not easy to forsee what would happen after another big war.

Prof. Einstein will not go back to Germany until government conditions improve, and that irritates and disturbs Mr. Hitler's government, which is not surprising.

To have one of the world's greatest scientists refuse to return to his country, in which science is worshipped almost as a religion, is not pleasant for those responsible for the government.

Mr. Hitler might retaliate by cancelling Prof. Einstein's passport, but other nations would be only too glad to welcome him, with no passport other than his own fame.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S election, and, more particularly his prompt actions and result-getting, have proved a blessing to the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies. Since March 4 President Roosevelt has received 14,000 telegrams, all praising him, some covering pages. Wires came thickest and fastest just after the President, in simple words, explained the banking situation "on the air."

BARDOLPH GUILTY ON 11 COUNTS

Banker to Seek New Trial; Faces Long Sentence

Charles A. Bardolph, president of the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company, was found guilty on 11 counts of making false entries in the books of the bank by a jury in Criminal Court today.

He was acquitted on all charges of embezzlement, two of perjury and two of making false entries, but ordered to pay costs on all charges on which he was tried.

The former banker faces a maximum penalty of five years on each count of his conviction, an aggregate of 55 years.

TO SEEK NEW TRIAL

Bardolph's counsel, Charles B. Prichard, immediately gave notice he would file a motion for a new trial. Judge W. H. McNaugher directed that Bardolph's bond of $5,000 be renewed. This done, the latter walked from the courtroom.

Bardolph gripped the arms of his chair but his face betrayed no emotion as he heard the verdict, pronounced at the opening of court this morning.

The jury of five women and seven men, which had retired late yesterday at the conclusion of the 10 days' trial, reached a decision last night, but had been instructed by the court not to return a sealed verdict.

The 11 false entry counts on which Bardolph was convicted related to deposits of drafts by David Kellerman, head of the Agricultural Exchange, which, testimony disclosed, had been entered by Bardolph as cash. The drafts were never paid. Kellerman, also indicted in connection with the bank's failure, is scheduled to go on trial soon.

The first indictment, embracing 17 embezzlement counts, on which Bardolph was freed, pertained to withdrawal of bank funds for stock speculations. The bank lost no money through these transactions, the commonwealth admitted, but contended the withdrawal constituted technical embezzlement.

OTHER CHARGES

The other charges on which the former bank head was acquitted included six counts of embezzlement based on alleged misuse of $30,000 in the Hendel mortgage payments, two of making false entries in which deposit slips of Kellerman did not bear Bardolph's initials, "C. A. B.," and two of perjury resulting from his taking oath to alleged false statements to the State Banking Department.

In the windup of the trial yesterday, Assistant District Attorney H. R. Phillips argued that Bardolph had convicted himself "by his own lips." Attorney Prichard contended Bardolph had been made the "goat" for the bank's failure, that he was "the soul of honor and his transactions clean as a hound's tooth."

Balm Suit Fought by Doug, Jr.

HOLLYWOOD, March 17.—(INS.)—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., young motion picture actor, today struck back at charges that he had stolen the love of another man's wife.

"Extortion plot" was his characterization of two suits filed against him yesterday in Los Angeles by Jorgen Dietz, chemical engineer.

Dietz, in one suit for $50,000, charged young Fairbanks with "wilfully, wickedly and maliciously," depriving the plaintiff of the affections of his wife, Mrs. Solveig Dietz, said to be a scenario writer.

Dietz's second suit asked $20,000 damages for asserted false imprisonment.

SEPARATION CITED

The alleged relationship between Fairbanks and Mrs. Dietz started in February, 1931, and resulted in the separation of Mr. and Mrs. Dietz April 15, 1932, Dietz recited.

Under threat of arrest for extortion, Fairbanks and his business manager, N. C. Levee, forced Dietz to accompany them to the District Attorney's office, where he was "browbeaten" and later imprisoned for two hours in a hotel room, Dietz charged in his second suit.

District Attorney Buron Fitts admitted Dietz had been questioned in his office by Chief Investigator Blayney Matthews "relative to an asserted $6,000 extortion plot against young Fairbanks."

"SHAKEDOWN" CHARGE

Fitts said:

"The investigation revealed that Mr. Dietz was attempting to compel Mr. Fairbanks to purchase of one Lucy Doraine a diamond necklace valued at $300

HOUSE FIRM FOR 3.2 PCT. BEER

Leaders 'Strong Arm' Drys to Speed Conference

Developments today in the "Beer by Easter" drive in Congress:

1—The House rebelled against the 3.05 per cent limit imposed in the beer bill by the Senate as drys forced debate on a special rule asking for conference.

2—With the Senate adjourned until Monday, final congressional action was delayed. The bill is effective 15 days after President Roosevelt signs it.

3—Prohibition forces prepared to carry a fight on the constitutionality of the beer bill to the Supreme Court.

4—A 60-day "dry spell" for Pennsylvania was in prospect due to delay in perfecting legal and other machinery for licenses.

Ready to Swap Jail Term for Office

MAYOR CHARLES HOWARD KLINE . . . . . A SIX-MONTH JAIL SENTENCE HANGING OVER HIM

Park Will Agree If Physicians He Names Find Mayor Ill

Mayor Charles H. Kline likely will be out of office within 10 days, his friends asserted.

Through his counsel, Edward G. Coll, the Mayor today was asking Judge Thomas D. Finletter to wipe out the six months' jail term against him on the grounds of ill health.

In return the Mayor would resign.

The request was in the form of a petition being sent by mail to Judge Finletter, in Philadelphia.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park, upon receipt of a copy of Coll's petition, was ready to ask Judge Finletter to authorize the prosecutor to name a commission of physicians to examine the Mayor.

UP TO PHYSICIANS

If these physicians find that serving of a jail term would endanger Kline's health, Park will not oppose a modification of sentence.

In fact, Park returned today from Philadelphia, where he presented to Judge Finletter the reports of several physicians who had examined Kline. These physicians advised against a jail term for the Mayor.

A move to free Kline's former supplies director, Bertram L. Succop, from jail, also was reported under way. He was sentenced to one year by Judge Finletter, and has already served two months.

Kline's petition, his associates believe, will be acted upon prompt-

BULLET KILLS ASSEMBLYMAN

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—(AP.)—Jacob Mathay, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the State House of Representatives, was found dead today with a bullet wound behind the right ear.

Clad in pajamas and a bathrobe, he was found by his wife, Mrs. Maude Tompkins Mathay, in the bathroom of their home after she heard a shot while preparing his breakfast.

Coroner Fred Schwarz, who assigned a deputy to investigate, said the death was reported to him as accidental.

G. Harry Ditter, who shared a law office with Mathay, said the Representative suffered extremely from nervousness recently and had never fully recovered from injuries suffered in an automobile accident more than two years ago.

Last spring, Mathay was renominated on the Republican ticket in a contest in which former United States Commissioner Howard A. Long, a colleague in the district, defeated former Mayor Harry A. Mackey.

Brandt Defends Vote Against Sunday Ball

Declaring the Schwartz Sunday sports bill commercialized Sundays and bowed to the will of the "big ball clubs," State Senator Herman P. Brandt, of Perrysville, the lone Allegheny County Senator to vote against the measure, said today he would change his vote if the bill could be amended to take out the "profit angle" and leave its adoption to the "people of the state."

The Senator added, however, that he did not see how the bill could be so amended. He said:

"Sunday sports and entertainments are all right if they are not operated for profit, but I think the baseball clubs are behind this measure and it wouldn't do the little fellows much good.

"The reaction to my vote is such as to assure me that I did the thing those who understand the bill wanted me to do. I have been criticized for voting against it, but those who criticized represented about the same proportion as those who petitioned me for the vote cast."

Meanwhile Senator John J. McClure, Republican whip, is understood to be moving to have the Schwartz bill vote reconsidered Monday, amended to provide for a referendum. The McClure referendum would permit communities to vote on Sunday sports if the bill receives a majority in the state.

Brewers Happily Busy As Thirsty Cry 'Beer'

Real Estate, Supply Dealers Feel Wave Of New Activity

Business and "morale" in the brewery industry took on a rosy glow here today while the public clamored for enlightenment on when and how they may expect to quaff legal beer.

The improved sentiment for the breweries and allied industries had its reflection in the real estate business, although activity thus far has been confined to inquiries, since there has been no definite information as to what restrictions there will be in dispensing the amber fluid.

V. L. Meyers, manager of the American Brewing Supply Company, reported his company has done a "land office" business this week in handling orders and inquiries for supplies.

Two pre-prohibition breweries—the Tube City brewery at McKeesport and the Home Brewery at Braddock—were being reconditioned. At the Home Brewery, it was said it would be ready for operation within 60 days.

Several breweries in Eastern Ohio also were reported to be preparing for resumption.

Restaurateurs, drug store proprietors and hotel men were wondering what to expect in the way of regulations for dispensing beer. Many of them were going ahead

Trading on Stock Mart Quiets Down

Trading in the securities markets quieted down today after the excitement of the two preceding sessions. Prices reacted early in the day, staged a fair recovery and then fell back slightly during the afternoon.

Profit-taking and an unfavorable interpretation of the proposed federal farm relief program depressed the grain market after a fairly strong opening. May wheat closed ⅞ cents under yesterday. Cotton was quiet and somewhat heavy. Bonds held well but the market was quiet.

County Boosts Park Golf Permit Fees

Golf, tennis and swimming fees in the country parks were boosted today by the County Commissioners. A golf permit, previously costing $10 a year, was raised to $20 and the Commissioners and County Parks Director A. M. Marion hope to balance the budget. The $1-a-day rate remains.

Adults, who bathed in the county park pools last year for 10 cents, must pay 15 cents this year and devotees of tennis must pay 15 cents an hour or $5 for an annual permit.

MAN AND WIFE SLAIN IN HOME

Frank Kosulak, 70, and his wife, Kathryn, 56, were found murdered today in the bedroom of their home at Champion Hill, near Sturgeon. A miner's pick was found in the room covered with blood. Dr. C. B. Denny, of Oakdale, said the couple had been dead several days.

Two trunks had been ransacked and the mattress on the bed overturned, detectives said.

That Kosulak had a premonition of the tragedy was revealed by William D. Marshall, Oakdale undertaker, who said he had approached him about a week ago to arrange for a future funeral.

The couple had not been seen since Tuesday night and neighbors, becoming suspicious, entered the home through an unlocked rear door. They found the body of the husband partly dressed lying on a couch in the bedroom with his head crushed, apparently by the pick found nearby.

In the center of the room the body of the wife lay. She was wearing no shoes.

Neighbors, Victor Clement and Alex Souffrant, summoned a constable from Sturgeon. Blood stains were found on a valve of a gas jet in the bedroom, according to detectives.

Roosevelt Doing Well, Says Mellon, Sailing

SOUTHAMPTON, March 17.—(INS.)—Reiterating his expressions of regret over leaving England, Andrew W. Mellon, retiring ambassador, sailed for the United States this afternoon aboard the Leviathan.

Also aboard was Yosuke Matsuoka, former chief of the Japanese delegation to the League of Nations Assembly, who is returning to Japan via the United States.

The Japanese, Polish, Italian and French ambassadors, Sir John Hanbury Williams, representing King George, and representatives of the British Foreign Office were on hand to speed Mellon on his homeward journey as he left London.

Mellon was in exceedingly good spirits, and looked more robust than usual. He told International News Service:

"It has been a happy year. I have made many friends and regret leaving, but I hope to return."

He declined to discuss the financial situation in the United States, beyond saying:

"Roosevelt seems to be doing well."

He predicted his successor-designate, Judge Robert W. Bingham, will be "very much liked" in London.

QUICK PASSAGE PROMISED BY LEADERS

Relief Bill Explained To Senators by Secretary Wallace

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The administration's farm relief bill, designed to boost prices on basic agricultural commodities produced this year, was before Congress today with Democratic leaders promising speedy enactment.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, appearing before the Senate Agriculture Committee, explained in detail the bill's provisions and answered a volley of questions from committee members.

Senator Smith (Dem.), of South Carolina, committee chairman, expressed hope that the bill would be reported to the Senate early next week. A number of senators, however, have requested that open hearings be held.

CALL FOR PASSAGE

In the House, Representative Jones (Dem.), of Texas, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, planned to bring the bill up for passage tomorrow.

The House Committee may attempt to simplify the far-reaching emergency bill, Speaker Rainey said today.

After a two-hour session behind closed doors, the committee called representatives of the Department of Agriculture to explain the intricate provisions of the plan.

The bill is declared by farm experts in Congress to embrace one of the most sweeping emergency farm relief plans ever proposed. It was recommended by President Roosevelt with the frank statement that it is an experiment.

The basic plan of the bill is to remove the agricultural surplus, which depresses prices, by limiting production during the 1933 crop year. Because the planting season is about to begin, extraordinary speed in passage was planned.

The basic agricultural commodities embraced in the bill are wheat, cotton, corn, hogs, cattle, sheep, rice, tobacco, milk and milk products. The Secretary of Agriculture can drop any product from operation of the bill.

TAX LEVY PLANNED

A processing tax would be levied upon all the products, similar to the billion-dollar tax proposed in the domestic allotment bill, to meet the cost of operation.

The money would be used primarily to withdraw land from production during the current year by renting land and allowing it to lie idle or divert it into other production.

Extraordinary powers are given the Secretary of Agriculture to admininter the act and to fix the tax which will be collected.

The bill is intended to raise the price of agricultural commodities to a point where a bushel of wheat will buy as much now as it did during the years 1909 to 1914.

The Smith cotton bill, which was "pocket vetoed" by President Hoover, is included. Under this bill, the cotton now owned by the government and co-operatives would be pooled.

HARRIMAN BANK QUIZ PRESSED

NEW YORK, March 17.—(INS.)—The federal grand jury investigation into Joseph W. Harriman's conduct of the affairs of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, of which he was formerly president, and until yesterday, chairman of the board, was expected to be completed today.

Harriman, seriously ill of a heart ailment, was a federal prisoner at his home, under $25,000 bail to appear for a hearing on March 28, to answer charges of misuse of the bank's funds. His resignation as chairman of the bank's board was announced today by Henry E. Cooper, president and conservator of the closed bank. The resignation, forwarded by Harriman from his home, was acted upon at a special meeting of the bank's board.

The grand jury continued examination of the remainder of nearly 200 depositors and customers of the institution. Among those who have been questioned so far were Charles A. Stoneham, president of the National Exhibition Company, owners of the New York Giants baseball club, and a representative of the Union Pacific Railroad.

ECONOMY BILL TO WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt on Monday will have a chance to sign a bill giving him virtually the broadest power Congress ever conferred upon an executive—power to lop half a billion dollars off federal expenditures.

It is embodied in the bill "to maintain the credit of the United States government," the economy bill that was passed in the House yesterday with a 373-to-19 majority.

The initial step this session in the new President's budget-balancing program, it gives him the authority, only slightly limited, to reduce veterans costs, federal salaries, and other expenditures.

When the House adopted Senate amendments by the huge majority, Presidential approval was expected to make it law before night. But the Senate recessed until Monday too quickly for Vice President Garner to affix his necessary signature.

CARLISLE, Pa., March 17.—(AP.)—Paul H. Griffith, commander of the Pennsylvania department, American Legion, has pledged 100 per cent of the department to President Roosevelt's economy plan.

Addressing a Cumberland County American Legion group at a banquet last night, Griffith said the President's plan would help return prosperity.

Urges Money Orders Be Used as Checks

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—Postoffice money orders as convenient as checks are the dream of Representative Louis T. McFadden.

He introduced a bill yesterday to permit the public to buy books of the money-order blanks from postoffices, street or rural carriers at a cost of three cents each. By paying the officer or carrier the amount of the order, users could have the checks certified free and send them to creditors as ordinary checks.

75 PCT. OF U. S. BANKS OPEN

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP.)—The banking system of the nation approached still closer to normalcy today. About 83 per cent of the banks in New York state, and an estimated 75 per cent or more of those in the nation were conducting full operations, bankers said.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(INS.)—Congressional action to place state banks on a par with national banks in the issuance of emergency currency appeared assured today.

Declaring that President Roosevelt has approved a bill making this provision, Representative Henry B. Steagall (Dem.), of Alabama, chairman of the House Banking Committee, planned to call the measure up for passage during the day.

The new bill, framed as a substitute for the Robinson bill passed by the Senate, permits Federal Reserve Banks to make direct loans to state banks and to issue currency against approved assets of the banks.

URGES CONTROL OF EXCHANGE

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(INS.)—Federal regulation of the New York Stock Exchange to curb the rapacity of manipulators was suggested today by William A. Gray, former counsel to the Senate Banking and Currency Committee in its investigation of exchange abuses.

In a report summarizing evidence taken under his direction, Gray declared the hearings proved that "powerful interests operating on a large scale in a particular stock, can so manipulate the market and control the price of that stock in normal times as to accomplish almost any desired result."

The federal government can regulate the exchange, he insisted, through its authority over interstate commerce, the mails and banking, and also through its taxing power. The report said:

"There can be no question but what a number of practices which have been shown to exist are evil in their results, whether or not they are evil in themselves."

Englebright Named Republican Whip

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(INS.)—Representative Englebright, of California, today was made whip of the House Republicans. He succeeds Representative Bachmann, of West Virginia, who was defeated last year.

At the time the announcement was made Minority Leader Snell also told the House Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, had been named to the Foreign Affairs Committee, the first woman to hold such a post.

TAX COLLECTION BY U. S. GAINS

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—Income tax collections for March 15 exceeded the amount collected on March 15 a year ago by approximately $1,011,000. The increase is due to the higher tax rates.

In making public these figures today, the Treasury said also that the collections for this month thus far were approximately $2,000,000 more than for the same number of days last March.

The tax paid before the Internal Revenue Bureau announced an extension for filing returns to March 31 amounted to $13,659,901 as compared with $12,648,765 a year ago.

For this month income tax has amounted to $34,082,240 as compared with $32,052,618 for the same period a year ago. Since last July 1, the tax for the fiscal year has amounted to $417,414,269 as compared with $690,173,961 the previous year.

Advocates Withdrawal Of Atlantic Unit From Pacific

(Editor's Note—Yosuke Matsuoka, chief Japanese delegate at Geneva before Japan quit the League assembly, has written an astonishingly frank statement for International News Service, calling upon the United States to withdraw her Atlantic scouting fleet from the Pacific Ocean as a means of improving Japanese-American relations.

Tokio newspapers recently hinted such a request would be made at Washington, but Matsuoka is the first responsible diplomat to make such a public declaration. He sailed from England today aboard the Leviathan and expects to confer with President Roosevelt on the Manchurian problem and Pacific relations.)

By YOSUKE MATSUOKA
International News Service.

LONDON, March 17. — I am glad to compiy with a request by International News Service for a statement setting forth my views regarding the Pacific problem.

I want to dispel once and for all the impression prevalent among many Americans that Japan is a disturber of universal peace.

Japan's action in Manchuria was to establish peace, not to disturb it.

As regards relations between Japan and the United States, I want to emphasize that I cannot see any cause for war provided we mutually mind our own business.

It is true that the atmosphere existing in both countries at the present moment is not reassuring.

I am certain that this is caused by a mutual lack of understanding of each other's aims and difficulties.

Injudicious actions and words on your part hurt the Japanese and the feeling now existing in Japan is the reaction.

All those who really desire peace and a new era of friendly cooperation in the Pacific should, I believe, use all their efforts to dispel the undercurrent of distrust and fear.

I believe, for instance, that a return of the United States scouting fleet to its normal base in the Atlantic would appeal to the Japanese people as one of the greatest gestures of good will and peaceful neighborliness that the United States could make.

It would usher in a new era of relations between the two countries.

EUROPE DEAF TO M'DONALD ARMS PLAN

Premier Prepares to Meet Mussolini In Conference

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

GENEVA, March 17.—Despite his impassioned plea that drastic limitation of the world's armies is essential to European peace, Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald's five-year disarmament plan seemingly fell upon deaf ears today.

Reports received from the various capitals by the press section of the League of Nations' secretariat disclosed an almost universal unwillingness to accept MacDonald's proposal for a total reduction of 1,000,000 men in Europe's armies, as well as elimination of thousands of big guns, tanks and war planes.

MOMENTOUS CONFERENCE

As the British Premier prepared to leave Geneva for Rome for what promises to be a momentous conference with Premier Mussolini, press comment and semi-official dispatches from all over the world held out little promise that his arms proposal would be accepted.

Even Berlin was "disappointed," despite the fact that the burden of MacDonald's address was a plea for German "equality." Officials in Berlin held that the offer to double Germany's air forces was offset by the plan to eliminate her highly trained Reichswehr and replace it with a militia.

Paris expressed "dismay," particularly over the fact that the plan would accord Germany a numerical military strength on European soil equal to that of France.

COMMEND MACDONALD

British officials praised the plan and commended MacDonald for the earnestness of his efforts to break the arms deadlock. But there was a general feeling of pessimism.

Despite MacDonald's breaking of precedent in submitting cold facts and figures, the Japanese War and Navy Department held that the plan was "too general." They doubted the possibility of enforcing limitation of military aircraft and declared that suspension of capital ship construction was already provided for in the London naval treaty.

American Aid for Disarm Program Seen

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(INS.)—American support of virtually all of the new British five-year disarmament plan appeared highly probable today.

There were growing indications that Ambassador Norman H. Davis, newly appointed chairman of the American disarmament delegation, would sail for Europe next week with instructions to throw American influence in support of the plan.

It was reported President Roosevelt already had expressed the sympathetic attitude of this government towards many features of the plan in conversations with the French and German ambassadors.

The latter called upon the President at the White House following the visit of Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, to enlist the support of this government on behalf of the plan.

There are one or two proposals in the plan not likely to meet with the full approval of this government, such as the proposed drastic limitation on military aircraft, but it is felt that a compromise can be worked out if the plan is acceptable to the other world powers.

Selection of Davis Pleasing to Paris

PARIS, March 17.—(AP.)—The appointment of Norman H. Davis as chairman of the American delegation to the world disarmament conference with the rank of ambassador pleased French official circles.

A government spakesman praised his tact and understanding of European affairs and expressed satisfaction with the activity on world questions of President Roosevelt.

Missouri Congressman Beaten by Colleague

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(INS.)—Representative Milton A. Romjue (Dem.), of Missouri, who came off second best in a recent fistic encounter with his colleague, Representative Clarence Cannon (Dem.), of the same state, was still absent from his office today nursing a wounded eye. At his hotel all inquiries were avoided, the clerk merely insisting Romjue was "not in." Yesterday members of his family said he was suffering from the flu.

Despite full confirmation of the reported encounter, every one concerned and their friends continued to insist there had been no altercation, although it was witnessed by the wife of the Representative and the mother of still another. Representative Lundeen (F.-L.), of Minnesota, said he separated the battlers.

Three factors contributed to the encounter: The men come from adjoining districts and may find themselves in the same district under reapportionment as opponents in the next Democratic primary; both are candidates for the important Democratic House Steering Committee and Romjue is supposed to have twitted Cannon for failing to vote to give President Roosevelt the large economy powers he asked.

Roosevelts Celebrate 28th Anniversary

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—A family party with a few old friends was the program with which the President and First Lady today marked their twenty-eighth wedding anniversary.

The Franklin Delano Roosevelts had no intention of throwing aside even for this occasion the simplicity and informality they took to the White House. Few were the guests invited to a dinner tonight. And among these were several who took part in that New York wedding 28 years ago.

Besides Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother; Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Dall, the Roosevelt's son-in-law and daughter; Mrs. David Gray, of Aiken, S. C., an aunt, and Mr. Roosevelt's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Delano, there were included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parish, in whose home the wedding was held, and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, he an usher in the wedding, a cousin of the President and White House social arbiter for the Hoovers.

Chances are that there were many reminders to the new White House family, because of the surroundings if nothing else, for it was President Theodore Roosevelt who on March 17, 1905, gave his niece, Anna Eleanor, in marriage to her distant cousin, Franklin.

DE VALERA SENDS MESSAGE OF HOPE FOR U. S. RECOVERY

ST. PATRICK'S DAY GREETING BROADCAST

Free State President Relates Gains of Irish People

Universal Service.

Eamon De Valera, president of the executive council of the Irish Free State, today sent a message to the American people. The message was directed to Bradley Kelly, director of Radio Station WINS in New York, and was read in a special St. Patrick's Day broadcast last night by Roderick J. Kennedy, grand marshal of today's parade in New York.

By EAMON DE VALERA
President of the Irish Free State Council.

I am very glad to have the opportunity of sending a short message to our friends in America on this, our national saint's day.

I wish, in the first place, to express my most earnest hope that the economic difficulties under which your country at present is laboring may quickly disappear, and that God may guide your ruler to find a means by which the national riches of your country may be utilized for the well-being of the whole American people.

Notwithstanding the crisis which at present is occupying your minds, I know that you will want to hear a word from me about the hope of my government for the immediate future of our country.

The object which we set out to obtain when we took office a year ago was to effect such alteration in our economic system as would enable the mass of our citizens to obtain a decent livelihood in their own country and reach a standard of living which would allow them to devote more of their energy to the development of our traditional Christian and cultural ideals, without which the nation cannot survive.

We have already achieved no small measure of success, and the people have shown their appreciation of our efforts by giving us a very largely increased number of votes in the recent general election.

I know you wish us well in our task as we wish you well in yours. Ireland is marching forward to her predestined goal, and God is with us, and we will succeed.

Accompanied by members of his cabinet and attended by a mounted escort, President Eamon de Valera drove in state from the government buildings to the Dublin procathedral for high mass.

N. Y. HONORING ST. PATRICK

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP.)—New York's hat was off today to the man who feazed the druids and overthrew the idol, Cromm Cruaich, in the plain of Mag Siecht.

If St. Patrick, who spread the gospel in the Emeraid Isle, could stand at Fifth avenue and Fiftieth this afternoon, he would see a sight to warm his heart—green waves of stalwart Gaels, billowing endlessly up the avenue in his honor.

Marching orders called for the 165th (fighting Irish) Regiment to lead, as always. The ranks upon ranks of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, including the Sarsfield, MacSwiney, Shandon and Manchester Martyrs Clubs.

A sigh or two tempered the joy of Grand Marshal Roderick J. Kennedy. The fleeting years have forced him to abandon his prancing horse for an automobile. Kennedy, 86, has led every St. Patrick's Day parade for 32 years.

FEAR FOR BABY NETS COUPLE

Anxiety for the 2-week-old baby they abandoned in a Glassport garage last week resulted in a young unmarried couple being held for court today on a morality charge, following a hearing before Justice of the Peace Robert J. Schwerha, of Glassport.

Leo Barbian, 28, of Mt. Vernon street, Coraopolis, and Miss Matilda Lockhart, 28, of Willow street, McKeesport, were arrested by Chief of Police D. J. George, of Glassport, late yesterday when they inquired for the child at McKeesport Hospital.

They admitted at the hearing they had placed the child in the garage of River Capt. Frank G. Schmidt, 209 Marie avenue, Glassport, last week, because the mother was afraid to take it home to her parents.

Barbian, it was brought out, is married and the father of a 3-year-old son.

VISITOR SOUGHT IN 'Y' SLAYING

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 17.—(INS.)—Erik Baumann, husky German-American athlete, had an unknown visitor in his Y. M. C. A. room the night before his strangled body was found in an improvised strait-jacket.

This information, given police today by a divinity school student who occupied a room in the Y. M. C. A., suggested a new theory as to the reason for the mysterious death of the young athlete, first attributed to an attempt to emulate an escape stunt of the late Harry Houdini.

The visitor, without a hat, was seen outside the door of the victim's room. He kept calling "come on" to apparently one or more persons inside the room.

Police believed that Baumann may have been the victim of a hazing stunt, trussed up by friends in a sleeping bag fashioned like a straitjacket.

In Baumann's attempt to escape from his bonds, authorities believed he may have strangled himself. Then his friends fled in terror.

Tostler told police they flagged his car at Braddock and Brinton avenues, and that while one of them pointed a gun at him, the other searched him.

Police said the men, who gave their names as George Patrick, 23, of 310 Cliff street, East Pittsburgh, and Joseph Seliga, 20, of 1316 Erma avenue, Braddock, had a corresponding sum of money, a roll of tokens and gun when arrested.

for the sum of $6,000. Mr. Dietz threatened that, unless this purchase was made, he would file an alienation of affections suit against Mr. Fairbanks.

"The latter refused to buy the necklace and complained to this office.

"To see how far Mr. Dietz would go, this office suggested to Mr. Levee that he deliver a check for $1,500 to Mr. Dietz. This was done, and when Mr. Dietz accepted the check he was brought to this office at once.

"It then developed that Mr. Dietz had been separated from his wife for over a year and a half, and that he wished to marry Miss Doraine. He so stated, and she made a similar statement.

"Mr. Dietz pleaded with Mr. Fairbanks for mercy, and the actor informed this office he did not wish to file any complaint."

Young Fairbanks said:

"I am not going to dodge the issue this time because I feel that it is an out and out attempt at extortion.

"I went through it all once before. Fred Beetson (the representative of Will H. Hays) took it up with Buron Fitts and Fitts wanted to prosecute them then, but the woman pleaded and cried and she had a daughter going to school and begged me not to send her to jail for the daughter's sake.

'HATE TO BE MARTYR'

"I hate to appear to be a martyr, but that is exactly what I am going to be. I am going to see the thing through.

"The most unfortunate part of it all is that Joan and my mother back East, innocently in the background, may suffer.

"But Joan understands the whole thing and has known about it all along. At first we laughed, but now we are mad—not between ourselves—but at the whole situation.

"That check given by Mike Levee and now in Fitts' possession was just a part of the scheme to prove the fellow was an extortionist."

Miss Crawford said:

"There is nothing for me to say except that I have known all about this from the start. We have discussed these flagrant charges together. It is an outrageous injustice and there is no truth whatever in them."

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 17.—Superior Judge J. C. Niles yesterday married Jorgen Dietz, 29, and Helena Kovacs, 34, both of Los Angeles.

Efforts to locate the couple following the ceremony were in vain. Mrs. Dietz was said by Judge Niles to be a motion picture actress.

KLINE QUITTING TO ESCAPE JAIL

ly by Judge Finletter, and they assert the way now seems open for the Mayor to retire from office in less than two weeks. The fact that Prosecutor Park presented certificates of the Mayor's doctors to Judge Finletter is taken to indicate Park is convinced the Mayor is really ill.

HERRON TO SUCCEED

John S. Herron, president of Council, and aspirant for the mayoralty nomination at the September primaries, would succeed Kline as Pittsburgh's chief executive for a 20-day period under the charter act. At the end of that time Council would elect a Mayor to serve until the first of the year when Kline's term would expire.

This new development does not affect the Mayor's appeal for a new trial. This appeal is now before the State Supreme Court, which is expected to decide next week whether the appeal should properly be before the Superior Court.

Th Mayor was fined $5,000, sentenced to six months in jail and removed from office by Judge Finletter at Butler two weeks ago. But he retained his office by appealing to the higher courts.

Cleveland Stays Home, Movies on 'Holiday'

Night clubs, grasping the potentialities, bade the entertainment seekers enter. One advertised:

"While the theaters are closed, see a great show while you dine and dance. Seven principals and a chorus of 16."

The farewell of the silver screen was accompanied by full houses at both matinee and evening performances yesterday as thousands rushed to the last shows before the "holiday."

A dispute over wages with musicians, stagehands and motion picture machine operators caused the order to close. Other employes already had taken wage reductions.

The first and second-run downtown houses "requested" the three unions to accept a 25 per cent cut. The unions asked more time to consider the question and the managers replied that if an acceptance were not received by Thursday they would close.

As the Cleveland theaters closed, reports from Indianapolis and Kansas City said wage disputes might result in similar action March 24 and 30, respectively. Managers of Youngstown (O.) theaters said they were considering the same tactics.

St. Patrick Day Justice Dispensed by Sweeney

Dispensation of justice by Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court was held up today until the magistrate found his badge—a bright green ribbon, with crossed American and Irish flags and the inscription "Erin Go Braugh."

It was the twentieth time the magistrate has worn the badge since becoming a police magistrate in 1913. He brings it out for St. Patrick's Day hearings.

A half-dozen drunks were led out for the magistrate and they profited by Ireland's patron saint and the green ribbon. They were discharged.

Sweeney explained the badge was worn by his father in parades in other years and by him was presented to the magistrate in 1887.

HOUSE OPPOSES BEER BILL CHANGES

to seek the conference with the Senate.

Under the procedure, a two-thirds vote was necessary for action today. Otherwise the rule would have to lie over until tomorrow.

This maneuver was forced by Representative Tarver (Dem.), of Georgia, a bitter opponent of the beer bill, who objected to a request to send the bill to conference.

SENATE ASSAILED

The conference was decided upon after sponsors of the House beer bill assailed the action of the Senate in reducing the permitted alcoholic percentage from 3.2 to 3.05 per cent, as well as the inclusion of 3.05 per cent wine.

With the Senate in recess until Monday, final congressional action was impossible before that time and a fight in conference would delay it still more.

When Representative Cullen (Dem.), of New York, sponsor of the bill, asked unanimous consent to seek the conference, several drys rose to their feet. Tarver put an end to discussion by objecting to the unanimous consent request.

CONFEREES NAMED

Speaker Rainey, standing by the House 3.2 per cent bill, had previously announced he would name as the House conferees the sub-committee which drafted the bill—a wet group. The sub-committee included:

Representatives McCormack (Dem.), of Massachusetts; Cullen (Dem.), of New York; S. Hill (Dem.), of Washington; Treadway (Rep.), of Massachusetts, and Bachrach (Rep.), of New Jersey.

Cullen said he hoped to have an informal meeting with the conferees expected to be named by the Senate, in the hope of reaching an agreement to be presented to both bodies on Monday.

The Senate passed the bill late yesterday after adopting three amendments, the one adding wine to the bill, the one reducing the alcoholic content from 3.2 per cent to 3.05 and another forbidding sales to persons under 16.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—A series of court battles over the constitutionality of the beer law, with the final decision up to the Supreme Court of the United States, is anticipated by both dry and wet leaders.

While attorneys for dry organizations have not yet outlined their plans of attack on the law legalizing beer, they have not waited for its final enactment to mass an array of court opinions and interpretations calculated to bolster their contention that the act is invalid.

Citing the first section of the Eighteenth Amendment, which prohibits the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor, Edward B. Dunford, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of America, contends that it has been "clearly shown that 3.2 per cent beer by weight is intoxicating," and that a statute legalizing its sale defeats the purpose of the Eighteenth Amendment and is therefore unconstitutional.

CITES COURT RULINGS

He maintains that the Supreme Court has held that it will take judicial notice that ale and porter are intoxicating and that there are court decisions holding that judicial cognizance will be taken that a beverage containing more than 2 per cent of alcohol by volume is an intoxicating liquor.

On the other side, Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania, former solicitor general of the United States, contends that Congress has the constitutional power to leave the prohibition of the first section of the Eighteenth Amendment unenforced.

BECK GIVES VIEWS

Beck told a Senate committee studying modification of the Volstead act that in his opinion as a constitutional lawyer, "Congress has the power under the Eighteenth Amendment to prescribe the permissible alcoholic content of so-called intoxicating liquors." He expressed the belief that the Supreme Court "would give the greatest respect to any declaration of Congress on the subject" and that any declaration "would not be plainly arbitrary."

Britain Ridicules Sabotage Charges

LONDON, March 17.—(INS.)—The British government today formally requested Soviet Russia to withdraw sabotage charges against six British employes of the Metropolitan-Vickers, Ltd., on the grounds they are "incredible and ridiculous."

The men were taken into custody in the course of a round-up by the Ogpu, the Soviet secret police, whose officials suspected a campaign of sabotage in plants where Metropolitan-Vickers installed electrical equipment.

DOG AS A JUDGE'S GUEST

JUDGE THOMAS M. MARSHALL AND HIS GREEN-WAVING DOG

Judge Marshall pictured today at the Courthouse as he "took a dare"—his wife's—that he didn't have the nerve to take their Irish setter, green-beribboned "Tim O'Keefe," to court. And so he did for the whole long day. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

PA. TO BE 'DRY' FOR 60 DAYS

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—(AP.)—A "60-day dry spell" for Pennsylvania even though his beer control bill becomes a law was predicted yesterday by State Representative Clinton A. Sowers.

Sowers said approximately that much time would be needed after legislative passage of the proposed measure to enable licensing machinery to be perfected and licenses granted.

Should modification of the Volstead act by Congress become effective before the Sowers bill passes, then it would be legal to sell beer without a license, he said.

But once the proposed bill passes the Legislature and is signed by the Governor, it will supersede part of the Snyder state enforcement act and the "dry spell" would ensue pending granting of licenses, the Representative explained.

Cleveland Reserve Chairman Named

CLEVELAND, March 17.—(AP.)—The appointment of Lewis B. Williams, of Cleveland, as Federal Reserve agent of the Fourth District and chairman of the board was announced here today.

Williams succeeds George De Camp, who resigned as chairman of the Fourth District Board Tuesday because of ill health.

3.05 Brew Better Than Pre-Pro., Says Editor

CHICAGO, March 17.—(INS.)—The 3.05 per cent beer approved by the United States Senate will taste just the same and carry as much potency as the 3.2 per cent brew originally provided for, in the opinion of Joseph Durbin, editor of Brewery Age. The difference will be about one drop of alcohol for each glass.

And the beer of 3.05 per cent still will be better than that of the days before prohibition, Durbin explained.

An ordinary eight-ounce glass of 3.05 beer will contain .244 of an ounce of alcohol and a glass of the 3.2 brew which the House had agreed upon would contain .256 of an ounce, a difference of about a drop per glass, Durbin explained.

BEER INSPIRES SLEEP—REED

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—The worst thing that Senator Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, can see in 3.2 per cent beer is that it "inspires" one to go to sleep.

He made this statement in the Senate yesterday during consideration of the beer bill, and explained it was based on his observation.

Saying he often had wondered whether the people and Congress in 1919 had not intended to "get rid of that type of intoxication that led to sodden drunkenness and the commission of crime," he added:

"I never heard of a murder being committed on beer. The kind of beer that contains 3.2 per cent of alcohol does not often inspire men to go out and commit crime.

"At the worst, according to my own observation, it inspires them to go to sleep; and I do not believe that that is what the Constitutional amendment was aimed at."

One Drop Difference In Senate, House Beer

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP.)—Senator Tydings today placed the difference between the Senate and House beer bills in alcoholic percentage as "just a drop." He said:

"I've figured it out and it means that the Senate beer would contain one drop less of alcohol in a total volume of 666⅔ drops."

Senate Vote On Beer Bill

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The final vote on the beer measure was 43 to 30. The roll call:

Democrats against the bill: Adams, Bratton, Byrd, Caraway, Connally, Hayden, McGill, Neeley, Pope, Russell, Sheppard, Stephens, Thomas, of Oklahoma.

Republicans against: Austin, Borah, Capper, Dale, Fess, Frazier, Goldsborough, Hale, Hastings, Hatfield, Keyes, Nye, Patterson, Robinson, of Indiana; Townsend, Vandenberg and White.

The following were paired or announced for the bill: Barkley, Byrnes, Coolidge, Kendrick, King, Lewis and McAdoo, Democrats; Carey and Davis, Republicans, and Shipstead, Farmer-Labor.

These senators were paired or announced against: Bailey, Costigan, George, Glass and Smith, Democrats, and Dickinson and Norbeck, Republicans. Gore, Democrat, Oklahoma, obtained unanimous consent to be excused from voting.

The positions of Cutting and Schall, Republicans, and Logan, Democrat, who were absent and unpaired, were not announced. There are two vacancies.

'Co-Ed Cafe Lounges' To Supplant Old Bars

NEW YORK, March 17.—(INS.)—"Co-educational cafe lounges" was the high-hat terminology with which New York hotel proprietors and prospective purveyors of the newly legalized beer were referring today when speaking of the drinking accomodations they plan shortly to offer the public.

These "lounges" will be a sort of Americanized version of the European cafe lounge where women as well as men may gather when thirsty. The women of the present generation, who have acquired their drinking habit in the speakeasies of this country, ocean steamship bars and the cafes of Europe, must be definitely counted in on any plans made to serve beer to the public, the hotel men said.

Edward C. Fogg, managing director of Hotel Roosevelt, said:

"Most women of the class who shape the fashions and customs of the day have visited speakeasies in New York and the cafes of Europe, Mexico and the West Indies. So that the cocktail and what might be called co-educational drinking are accepted conditions.

"Not only has the old prejudice against alcoholic beverages disappeared among most of the newer generation of women, but they will undoubtedly insist on sharing the social beverage that used to be the somewhat shame-faced privilege of man in pre-prohibition days."

Most of the hotels are planning to install bars adjacent to the cafe lounges.

Plans also were going forward for establishment of a number of "beer gardens" in the city and adjacent territory. In Westchester County, beer gardens will be established as part of that county's park system, it was announced. The county already operates a number of golf clubs.

MOBSTERS PLAN WAR TO HOLD BEER TRADE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 17.—A "beer war"—the racketeering gangster mobs on one side and the legitimate American brewer on the other—appears to be looming.

Underworld outfits such as the "Dutch" Schultz organization in New York City and the Capone ring in Chicago are to be thrown into direct competition early in April when the American people will be able legally to drink a glass of palatable beer and sip light wines for the first time in 13 years.

Capone's mob is preparing to operate three big breweries in Chicago. The Schultz outfit in New York is showing no signs of relinquishing its $5,000-a-day business.

In other large cities, such as Philadelphia, Detroit and St. Louis, the gangster element is understood to be preparing for a "last-ditch" fight to hold its trade.

Officially the legitimate American brewers have nothing to say concerning the possibility of the inauguration of a machine gun war by the bootleg brewing organizations.

Off the record a prominent brewer scoffed at the idea of a beer war. He declared that if the tax on beer is moderate and the brewers are able to sell the beverage at a reasonable price—say at a nickel or a dime a glass—the bootleg brewers now operating would be unable to sell their product at the price now prevailing—a quarter a glass.

A report, which none of the big brewers would confirm, has been circulated to the effect that the gangsters have offered to provide "protection" in greater New York to the legitimate brewers at the rate of $10,000 a week. They would give "detective" service under the plan.

Ohio Repeal Vote Bill Near Passage

COLUMBUS, O., March 17.—(AP.)—Only Senate concurrence in minor alterations was needed today to complete the legislative course of the Mosier bill calling for a state convention to consider ratification of the federal prohibition repeal amendment submitted by Congress.

By a vote of 72 to 50, the House passed the bill after inserting the amendments late yesterday. The Senate, which had approved the measure, is expected to act on the changes Monday night. Under the bill's provisions, the convention would be composed of 52 delegates elected at large. The election probably would be held on November 7, next.

BREWERS BUSY AS THIRSTY CRY 'BEER'

with plans for caring for an increase in business.

The Blaw Knox Company, a Pittsburgh concern, was reported to have obtained patent rights in the United States for a German process that makes beer in half the time now needed in American breweries. It was said a "real high class" beer is brewed by this process. The Blaw Knox Company will not make beer, it was said, but will make the apparatus to be sold to brewers. Wall street gossip saw indications that stockholders of the company would benefit.

Speculation as to the manner of dispensing the beer drew many comments from "old-timers" that they hoped the old-time bartender would return. The beer, they said, wouldn't taste so good if it were served like "pop" at a soda fountain.

Innovations since the pre-prohibition days will mark the hotels' service—portable bars that can be wheeled to any social room being a new feature.

HOTELS PREPARE BARS

The Eppley Hotels—William Penn and Fort Pitt—already are working on details for serving the foaming beverage to guests. The William Penn's old grill room once again will become a drinking room. Plans announced by the management call for the permanent service bar being placed in the present sandwich shop. Adjoining this room will be the cafeteria and the grill room.

Portable service bars, complete with refrigeration plants and barrels, will be used on the seventeenth floor. They will be easily wheeled to the ballroom, Urban room or other social rooms as service demands. Such equipment will be placed in the Fort Pitt Hotel, while the permanent bar will be built in the coffee shop.

REAL ESTATE GAIN

An improvement in the real estate business in some localities was seen by real estate men. One said many inquiries had come from persons seeking to buy or rent properties formerly occupied by saloons, hotels and restaurants. Another said there had even been inquiries for old breweries, but these, he said, were largely a result of "pipe dreams" from persons who could not operate breweries even if they had them.

For the most part, plans for the dispensing establishments probably will not be carried to completion until it is known what regulations the state will place on serving the liquid. The Sowers liquor control measure is scheduled to make its debut in the Legislature next Monday night. It will provide the regulating machinery when it finally is passed and signed by the Governor.

LEADERS LAUD KAUFMANN JOB PLAN

Economists and relief specialists today praised "the purpose and spirit" of the work relief plan presented to the administration in Washington and the Legislature at Harrisburg by Edgar J. Kaufmann.

The proposal to set up an "experimental unit" in Pennsylvania, with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation advancing $200,000,000 in credit to individual and corporate construction projects would be particularly beneficial to this state, in the opinion of Dr. Bartow Griffiss, head of the department of economics, Carnegie Institute of Technology.

SEES BENEFIT

Referring to Mr. Kaufmann's estimate that $120,000,000 would be paid out to unemployed in wages, Dr. Griffiss said:

"It would relieve Pennsylvania of a great portion of its cost of unemployment relief and would mean credit inflation which would be helpful to industry in general. Such inflation, well controlled, is a benefit.

"This plan is an indication that big businessmen are thinking about the people's problems and are thinking on a national scale."

TRADE IMPETUS

The Kaufmann plan for putting men to work and giving an impetus to building and general industrial rehabilitation would "tend to stimulate normal activity by normal agencies along this line," said John D. Brady, head of the Bureau of Recommendations, Carnegie Institute of Technology, and co-author of a recent statistical survey of occupational problems in Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania. He added:

"I am thoroughly in accord with work relief as opposed to direct relief. While it may cost a little more, it does a greater social good than direct relief.

"I think the fact that such money or credit would be available might serve to stimulate banks, building and loan associations and contractors and awaken the profit-making desires of the people, which are now dormant."

Reed Urged to Back Kaufmann Job Plan

HARRISBURG, March 17.—(INS.)—In an attempt to harmonize Pennsylvania's proposed unemployment relief program with the federal system, Representatives P. B. Rice, Dauphin, and Wilson G. Sarig, Berks, announced today they have requested United States Senator David A. Reed to arrange for a meeting with representatives of the Roosevelt administration in Washington tomorrow.

Rice and Sarig will discuss with national leaders the relief program submitted to the Pennsylvania Assembly by Edgar J. Kaufmann, of Pittsburgh. The Kaufmann plan, Rice said, proposes to take 400,000 of the total of 1,300,000 unemployed families of the state off direct relief and provide them with work.

The plan, which deals with self-liquidating loans, is designed to relieve both the state and national governments from appropriating money to aid the needy. Details of the scheme have been submitted to Prof. Raymond Moley, advisor to President Roosevelt.

'Newlywed' Prize Winners Named

Most Contestants Favor 'Old Folks' Helping Young

Opinion was divided on Elsie Robinson's question: "Should the Old Folks Support the Newlyweds?" However, most of the answers that were submitted were in favor of the old folks helping young folks all they could, in the present hard times.

First prize was awarded to Mrs. John Schneck, 265 Brookside avenue, Washington, Pa. Here is her answer:

"So far as they are able, Age should extend a temporary and willing hand to help Youth through the darkest hours of the worst depression ever known. Young people are seething with rebellion because of their inability to follow the natural mating instinct. Throw out the life-line, parents — save your children!"

Second prize went to L. S. Myers, 30 West Marlin drive, Pittsburgh. He said:

"'This hurst me worse than it does you.' 'It's for your own good!' who doesn't remember those words as the stick fell? They seemed unreasonable 'then,' didn't they? Just as unreasonable as the withheld support of your parents now. And yet—old folks see ahead—it's for your own good!"

Third prize was awarded to Dr. M. E. Guertin, 2700 Block Broadway, Dormont. His answer follows:

"Do you remember, mothers and fathers, how when your little ones got caught in unexpected rains you RAN to meet them with umbrellas? Your children, larger grown, have been FORCED into the storm of depression. Are you going to them with protection now? They need you! Help support them home!"

Fourth prize went to Anne Flocker, 445 Turnpike street, Beaver, who was very emphatic in her negative opinion. She said:

"Should the old folks support newlyweds? Emphatically no. To make a success of matrimony and 'Life,' newlyweds must lay their own foundation. Support from the old folks often instills the idea, 'Life is just one grand merry-go-round.' Therefore, youngsters contemplating matrimony should be able to stand on their own feet."

This is the last of the series of contests on various subjects of human interest.

GUARD EDITOR, SLAYER, IN JAIL

MEDFORD, Ore., March 17.—(INS.)—Extra state police were being rushed here today to guard against what Medford police feared would be mob violence resulting from the slaying of Constable George Prescott, 62, by Llewellyn A. Banks, militant editor and orchardist, in Southern Oregon's bitter political feud.

First degree murder charges were filed against Banks, his wife, and E. A. Fleming, who were in Banks' house when Prescott was shot.

The Grants Pass (Ore.) jail in which Banks was held was under heavy guard. Banks' story of the killing was:

"I shot George Prescott in defense of my home. Poor George! I am sorry for him, but under the circumstances I could not have acted differently."

Banks had threatened a revolution against the local government here if the Governor did not intervene.

More than 25 persons now are under arrest for the alleged theft of 10,000 ballots from the courthouse vault.

FATHER-IN-LAW OF THAW ILL

LONDON, March 17.—(INS.)—Harry Hays Morgan, 73, retired United States consular official, is seriously ill at the Hampstead home of his daughter, Lady Furness, the family revealed today.

In addition to Lady Furness, the former Thelma Morgan, another daughter, the widowed Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, was at his bedside. She is the twin sister of Lady Furness.

A third daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, Jr., lives in Pittsburgh.

Poundmaster Has Big Heart, Urges Dog Fee Cut

DULUTH, Minn., March 17.—(AP.)—Frankly, C. A. Loomis, poundmaster, admits his heart isn't hard enough to let him enjoy dog catching. In his annual report he said he found it difficult either to collect the fees for dogs or separate them from their masters. He wrote:

"I find it hard to take a faithful family dog from its home when grandma, mother and all the children are crying to keep it. It requires a heart of stone and I cannot always do it."

He advocated lower fees.

TWO QUARRELS JAIL COUPLE

The radio program which Mrs. Louise Collenback was listening to when her husband, Thomas E., returned at 1 a. m. to their apartment at 4518 Forbes street, annoyed him and caused an argument.

Police were summoned to quell the disturbance. After they left it was renewed and the police were called back, this time by the husband. Then both were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct.

In Morals Court today, Magistrate Thomas D. Jones discharged them and turned the couple over to social workers.

The Hollywood Shop

THE new Hollywood Shop is first on the list of things to see Saturday. You won't be disappointed.

Here are exact copies of the identical dresses, coats, and suits, which the "It" ladies wear in their big screen moments in the newest pictures . . . available to local misses and junior-misses at very practical prices . . . $16.75 to $39.75.

These fashions have been chosen for us by Seymour, stylist for Photoplay Magazine, and are offered, with the approval of the stars and the producers, exclusively at this store in Pittsburgh.

You are going to be thrilled with this new shop, and its possibilities for enhancing your personality with these genuinely American fashions inspired by famous beauties of the screen.

Lastex Exhibit

SOMETHING else you must see tomorrow is Pittsburgh's first complete presentation of Lastex, the new miracle yarn which has already been adopted by more than 400 manufacturers of women's and children's and men's garments. Lastex imparts the flexibility of living flesh to silk, cotton or wool. It can be washed, dried, and pressed without injury, and no matter how often it is stretched, it will not sag or bulge.

Father and daughter can wear the same pair of gloves! . . . hats that fit your head instead of your trying to fit your head to a hat . . . and frocks that follow every curve of the figure without any thought of alterations!

Does it intrigue you? Then see the special exhibit here this week. Miss Marjorie Bridger, their special representative, will show you some of the smart uses to which it is being put by leading manufacturers.

You are going to hear a lot more about Lastex, and this is the chance to get the story right from headquarters.

... Horne's, Second Floor ...

World's Windows Fair

STILL a third reason for a visit to Horne's tomorrow is to see the Century of Progress World's Fair paintings which furnish the backgrounds for all our Penn Avenue windows. They are interesting for the first glimpse they furnish of the striking architectural and engineering motifs of the coming Chicago exposition. In windows as in every other store activity, it is the Horne policy to lead the way. School children, as well as adults, will find the windows interesting.

Give yourself a Saturday treat, by seeing the grand showing tomorrow . . .

Self-Consciousness Remedy Simple as Ailment

Are you "self-conscious?"

Do you shrink, and shiver, and long for some place to put your hands and feet when you have to go places and meet people?

If you do—why do you? And what can be done about it? Maurine would like to know.

Dear Elsie:

Will you please try to extend me a helping hand? I have tried and tried to help myself, and it just seems as if I can't do it. So I am coming to you in the hope that you can tell me what is the matter with me, and how I can get away from it. The way things are, I am, honestly, nearly crazy.

The trouble is I am self-conscious. I can find plenty of things to talk to my family about—that is, the immediate family; but I am just as bad with some of my cousins that I don't see very often, as I am with strangers. And I seem to be especially dumb if I happen to be with people I like and would like to make a good impression on.

If I am at a party, I just don't know what to do with myself. I am not bad-looking, and I take care to look neat and to dress as nicely as I can. I don't have big feet or hands, but it would seem like I had, when people are around—I just don't know what to do with them, and I can't think of a thing to say. I am just simply in misery. And, oh! how I do long to be gay and free like other girls!

CAN NOT ENJOY SELF

I have tried to force myself to go places and to talk to people. Someone told me that I'd get over this if I'd do that. But it doesn't seem to help. I work and I get along fine with the people I work with. I know them pretty well. But if I go to a party, even with them, that same terrible, paralyzed feeling settles on me. It is awful.

Will you please try to help me? I am just about desperate.

What is wrong with me? Why are some people cursed this way? And what can I do about it? MAURINE.

Why are you self-conscious?

Let me ask you one, honey. Just what is "self-consciousness?" Think a minute, now, before you answer. Isn't it just simply consciousness of self—your self? Sure it is. And when you think that over, you'll have the answer to your riddle.

REMEDY IS SIMPLE

You aren't suffering from a mysterious ailment. You are simply thinking too much about Maurine, and how Maurine is going to appear to people. You give way to fears that she won't appear well, and the more effort you make to throw off that feeling, the more tightly you drive it into your mind—so you just sit around and feel awkward. You're afraid to move, because you're afraid you'll make the wrong move? Isn't that it? Of course it is!

And the remedy? It's just as simple as the ailment, child. Get conscious of other people—not as you affect them, but as they, themselves, are. You've been too busy with Maurine, so far, to really see them as themselves—as living beings with hopes and fears and griefs and longings and dreams, like your own.

Begin to see them, my dear. Begin to wonder, not how you affect them, but how life affects them, and why. And go out to them, with genuine sympathy and interest and friendliness and heart for them. Go out to them, and they'll go out to you, because you will have given them something bright and stimulating, added something to their lives.

New President Still "Her Boy" to His Doting Mother

By FAY KING.

As we listened in to the clear, sure, charming voice of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, as he became the 32d President of these United States, our thoughts were of his mother.

Surely her mother-mind pictured for a moment the very little boy he was long, long ago.

But the sweetness of her thoughts and the happiness in her heart on this great occasion were no more than those which fill the heart and mind of any mother of a good son. A son doesn't have to become President to fill his mother's heart to overflowing with pride and happiness. He needs only to be devoted, thoughtful and good.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Detective's Plan Interrupted by New Menace

Lee Chow's answer to Wynne's query was a prompt and incisive question.

"If we wait to help you with this man, will we be able to make contact with the others before they attack?"

"Sure thing!" Wynne replied. "The attack's scheduled for nine-forty. Mr. Graham is to fly over the house at nine-thirty. We've almost an hour before then, and they're not far from us now. They don't want to get up there too soon. We can dispose of this fellow in short order. There's a deserted old hut, about five minutes' walk from here, where he's evidently been camping when he wasn't traveling a beat through these woods. We'll just roll him in there. That's why I'd like your help if I can get it. Three of us can carry him there quicker than I can drag him."

"Four of us," Mary corrected pertly. "You're not going to leave me out of this party. I can lug one of his feet as well as anybody."

"Right you are, Sister," Wynne answered with the chivalrous admiring indulgence which decent older masculinity invariably offers to attractive, ambitious young feminity. "But don't get in front of those feet. He's pretty well hobbled, but if he came to, he might manage to get in a fair kick, even if it didn't do him any good."

MADGE GUARDED

"All right!" Wynne said, and in the two brief words I sensed a certain breathless hurry: "Let's go!"

"Not you, Mrs. Graham," Lee Chow said gravely, and with finality, as I stooped to help Mary. "We do not need you, and we cannot risk any unusual exertion for you."

Was he guarding me because he had thought that his aged henchman had spoken, that I "belonged to Lee Chow boss man?" Again I was glad of the friendly darkness for my cheeks were burning.

There was only one thing to do, and that was to obey Lee Chow's mandates until I could get to my father, Harry Underwood and Hugh Grantland. I did not dare say Dicky, for I knew that his anger when he found that I had broken my promise to him would be black and terrible. Yet my conscience acquitted me of deliberate breach of trust. I had not intended to join the rescue party until Dr. Barnes' summons to meet Lee Chow made it imperative that I go. That the Chinese was possessed of information vital to the success of the rescue, I was as certain as I was that he would divulge that knowledge to no one save Hugh Grantland. I did not see how I could have acted otherwise than I had under the circumstances, but I was distinctly unhappy as I toiled up the steep path in the wake of Mary and the three men.

SURPRISE AT HUT

It was a tortuous path, a climb that winded me, who carried no burden, and before it ended, the quick short breaths of the laden four ahead told me that they were finding their task difficult indeed. But finally we came to the border of a small cleared space, in reality little more than a widening in the path, and through the darkness I was able to discern the outlines of a hut clinging to the side of the mountain, and so tiny that one knew instinctively it could contain but one room.

"Here is where the bird's been hanging out, while he watched the paths," Wynne murmured. "It'll make a good cache for him now."

"You are sure there is no one else in the place?" Lee Chow asked, in the same low murmur that Wynne had used, and which because of the rushing stream that tumbled down the mountain side within a few feet of us could not have been heard in the hut. "Forgive me for asking—I know you must have investigated—but I have a queer impression—I suppose you would call it psychic—that someone beside ourselves is—"

He did not finish the sentence, for from the interior of the ramshackle hut came an anguished groan.

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Match-Winning Coup

Mr. Heber D. Kern, of Union City, N. J., wrote me recently to tell me how much he had enjoyed reading my articles, and stated that it was due to reading them that he now recognizes a squeeze when he sees it, while prior to that time that play represented to him the great unsolved mystery of all times. As an illustration of the fact that he is able not only to recognize a squeeze but at the same time execute it neatly, he submitted the hand below, which was played in a hard-fought Rubber game, in which he and his partner needed every point in order to win. It was the last hand of the rubber when Mr. Kern's partner, sitting North, dealt the hand below:

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North: ♠ A 10 6 4 ♡ 9 ◇ A K 9 8 6 3 ♣ A 4

West: ♠ Q J 5 2 ♡ K 10 3 ◇ Q 5 ♣ 9 7 6 2

East: ♠ 9 8 7 ♡ Q 8 7 5 4 ◇ 7 2 ♣ Q J 10

South: ♠ K 3 ♡ A J 6 2 ◇ J 10 4 ♣ K 8 5 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
6 ◇	Pass	6 N T	Pass
Pass	Pass

Mr. Kern, commenting on the bidding, says that after four hours of play, the count was such that making a diamond Small Slam would leave them still behind, while making six notrump would bring the score out exactly even. This explains the six-notrump bid. Obviously, as the cards lie, six diamonds could not possibly be defeated.

West's Opening lead was the spade Queen, which was not the best lead in the hand, but gave Mr. Kern the opportunity to make the Vienna Coup and win the match. The trick was won with the King in the closed hand, and the suit at once returned and the Ten finessed. The diamond King was then led, followed by the 4 of clubs, which South won with the King. Now the diamond Knave was returned, and when the Queen fell, the Slam was assured. However, there was a possibility of an extra trick and the winning instead of the tying of the match if East held the club Queen. With a black card established in the hand of each opponent, it would not be possible for them to defend the black suit and hearts when forced to the end game position. With this in mind the spade Ace was led from Dummy, establishing the Knave in West's hand and completing the Vienna Coup. This was followed by the club Ace, establishing a high card in the East hand. Four rounds of diamonds followed, the last of which made any defense impossible. The situation, with the lead in the Dummy hand at this time, was:

North: ♠ 6 ♡ 9 ◇ 3 ♣ —

West: ♠ J ♡ K 10 ◇ — ♣ —

East: ♠ — ♡ Q 8 ◇ — ♣ Q

South: ♠ — ♡ A J ◇ — ♣ 8

On the lead of the last diamond, East, forced to keep the club Queen, parted with the heart 8, South discarded the club, and West, in turn, was squeezed. Knowing that the spade was good in Dummy, he discarded the heart Ten. Mr. Kern led the heart 9 from Dummy, upon which both the King and Queen fell, South winning with the Ace, and the Knave won the last trick and the hard-fought match by a margin of 30 points.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

May I express my appreciation for the help your column has given me? In it I have found the answers to many questions which arise daily.

1—I am to be graduated from high school and I am rather doubtful on one point. Should the tissue which comes on the invitation be taken out or left in?

2—When serving at a dinner, are the dishes served from the left and removed from the right, or do you remove from the same side? THANK YOU.

Thank you for your kind and friendly words. I am so happy that the column has been helpful to you.

1—If the engraving is thoroughly dry . . . and it probably would be, since these invitations are usually ordered, a generous length of time before the date of the graduation . . . it is not necessary to enclose the tissue paper. I like very much not having the tissue enclosed for to me it adds a touch that seems inappropriate.

Note of Regret

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I recently received an invitation to a class reunion in another state. As I was unable to attend it, I don't know how to answer, as I was requested to reply. The reunion was held at a woman's home. I don't know her, but I know her children. Also I don't know who wrote the invitation.

Should I write to her or my class teacher?

The letter was delayed in getting here, and the reunion was held last week. M. M.

Under the circumstances I think that it would be gracious of you to drop a note to each one, your class teacher, who may have written the invitation, or who at least would know who did, and would pass on the letter to her, and the other note to the woman who was the hostess of the reunion.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Sensible Precautions Against Burns, Scalds

Burns, scalds and explosions continue to take the lives of many men, women and children. Most of these accidents could have been prevented.

Dr. Copeland

It is a pathetic sight to see a fire victim. Those who survive are often scarred and even disabled for life.

No one should overlook the serious danger of carelessness in the handling of fire and hot liquids, such as water, coffee, soup, milk and gravy. Scalding by hot liquids is serious and like fire injuries, may prove fatal. Children and elderly individuals, particularly, should be protected from these dangers, because the young and aged quickly succumb to such accidents.

Children should never be permitted to play with matches. The kitchen stove, with its boiling kettle and other hot utensils, is a constant source of danger to children playing in the kitchen. Frolicking and skipping and active play should be permitted only in a room free from this danger.

Too often adults are burned or scalded by reason of that dangerous practice of cleaning clothes with gasoline. Certainly no one should forget to avoid fire and matches when cleaning with gasoline.

Another common cause for fire accidents is one I wish to warn you against. This is the starting of a fire with kerosene oil.

I beg of you to bear in mind these dangers. I think it advisable, too, for everyone to be familiar with the emergency treatment of a burn.

A simple burn is best treated by applying moistened starch, flour or baking powder. This protects the damaged skin and keeps the air away from the inflamed surface. When the burn is more severe and the skin red, apply olive oil, castor oil, vaseline, or some soothing ointment.

Do not use kitchen lard or grease, as infection is likely to take place from such contaminated material. If the victim has been severely burned and suffers from intense pain, place him in a warm tub of water to which a pound of baking soda has been added. While waiting for the doctor to arrive, keep him in the tub. Hot fluids, such as weak tea or milk, should be given the sufferer. This maintains the body heat and prevents collapse and shock.

If your clothes are on fire never run for help. Running stirs the flames and causes the clothes to burn more. Lie down on the floor and roll up in an overcoat, a rug or blanket. If a covering is not within reach, beat your arms on the fire as you roll. Continue rolling until the fire is out.

It is a pity if everybody gets excited when a fire occurs. Coolness in this alarming predicament will save you discomfort, severe injury and perhaps your life.

DESCRIBE DEATH OF CHURCHMAN

INDIANA, Pa., March 17.—(AP.)—A description of the manner of the death of John Alexander Warden, 69, was in the record today as court continued the trial of Everett G. Wilhelm, 67, charged with slaying the Creekside Church official.

The state charges that Wilhelm threatened Warden and three other members of the church board after they lodged informations against him and had him arrested charged with disturbing a church gathering.

The first witness as the trial opened late yesterday was Dr. Frederick W. St. Clair, coroner, who said he performed an autopsy on Warden's body.

He said a triple-edged file was plunged in the chest, there were shotgun bullet wounds in the abdomen, and the body was badly burned after the Warden home was set on fire.

The coroner added that shortly after Wilhelm was arrested, he found burns on the left cheek of the prisoner. The jail physician, Dr. Charles E. Rink, corroborated this testimony.

Pittsburgh will be honored in a nationwide broadcast over the blue network of the National Broadcasting Company, Tuesday at 2 p. m., when awards in the 1932 National Traffic Safety Contest will be announced, according to word received by the Better Traffic Committee here. Pittsburgh was co-winner with Evanston, Ill., in a group comprising all cities of 500,000 and over.

KAISER WRITES ARTIST HERE

Pleased with a miniature portrait, former Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany has sent Jacob Zeiger, of McKeesport, an autographed lithograph of himself to express his appreciation. An accompanying letter indicates that Wilhelm II still is kaiser and king to his household at Doorn, Holland.

Zeiger painted the miniature of the Kaiser as he has done for many noted persons, including Franklin D. Roosevelt when he was Governor of New York and the late Thomas Edison.

The letter from the Kaiser's secretary said:

"His Majesty, Kaiser Wilhelm II, has gladly received your good wishes and the miniature portrait, and has his thanks transmitted to you for this proof of friendly feeling.

"The artistically done portrait in the pretty frame has pleased His Majesty very much. As a sign of his thanks and recognition, His Majesty has the accompanying picture with his signature sent you with his greetings."

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., March 17.—While only a few days separated him from an inheritance of some $27,000, according to reports here, Myron Cavenor, 58, was found shot to death with a gun at his side in his Water street home early this morning, according to a report to the Coroner.

Cavenor's body was found in the kitchen by his wife, Mrs. Ella Cavenor, and a sister, Mrs. Richard Reddick.

Cavenor was to receive an inheritence amounting to nearly $28,000 from an uncle, who lived in Philadelphia, in a day or two, it was said here.

ROMEO'S CHECKS BOUNCE

That was the story that pretty 19-year-old Mary Beston, of White Plains, was telling today about fascinating, captivating "Jack Harris" who met her on Thursday, married her on Friday and deserted her on Saturday.

Jack Harris stood White Plains on its ear during his three-day stay in the city and today merchants are looking sadly at the checks he gave, all of which have bounced right back. Nothing was too good for his bride. She had to have $200 worth of clothes; a new expensive sedan; a wedding supper for 44 guests and an eight-piece orchestra.

The banks were closed, so everyone gladly accepted Jack's checks. They proved to be as good as his promise to love, honor and support his bride. Jack was last seen lying down in the home of Mary's mother on Saturday. He complained of a headache. Then he vanished but he left behind him many a headache among the merchants, automobile salesmen, hotel people and orchestra leaders who took his checks.

Fall Injuries Fatal To East End Man

Jerry Driscoll, 69, of 511 Sheridan avenue, died today at the Pittsburgh Hospital from injuries suffered when he fell down the steps in his home on Thursday, according to a report of the Coroner. Driscoll was a retired East End businessman.

OIL PLANT FIRE LURES CROWD

Flames leaping high into the air from a pressure still at the plant of the Gulf Refining Company, Neville Island, attracted residents of the North Boroughs and Sewickley Valley last night.

Gasoline and light oil ignited when a "pop" valve in the fractionating tower of the still "popped," it was said.

The fire broke out when the employes were changing shifts at 11 o'clock.

Excessive pressure was believed to have caused the valve to let go.

BARE DEAD ACTRESS' LIFE

LONDON, March 17.—(INS.)—Secrets of the private life of Anny Ahlers, beautiful 26-year-old German actress known to London only as a brilliant, sweet-singing prima donna, were revealed by her maid today at a Coroner's inquest into her death.

The maid, Maude Farace, testified the young actress habitually drank straight brandy when appearing at the theater, and that every day she consumed at least half a bottle of champagne.

Last Sunday night, when Miss Ahlers fell while walking in her sleep and received injuries causing her death, she drank nearly a full bottle of champagne before going to the theater, the maid told the jury.

Despite this testimony, the Coroner's verdict was suicide while of unsound mind.

Ironically, the maid's testimony revealed, Miss Ahlers frequently took sleeping potions to fight somnambulism, and did so Sunday night. Then, after falling asleep, the maid said, she got up and walked, fell from a window and was fatally hurt.

Man Kidnaped, Auto Stolen by Bandits

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., March 17.—Arthur Townley, Jr., 35, pottery worker, reported to police today that he escaped by jumping after two bandits, who said they "had pulled a job here and had to get to Steubenville," kidnaped him in his own automobile and ordered him to drive to the latter city. His abductors fled with his car.

Instead of holding the annual St. Patrick's Day festival in the basement of Old St. Patrick's tonight, Father Cox announces that the program will be transferred to Croatian National Hall, 822 North Canal street, North Side. Joe Walsh will be master of ceremonies and Father Cox will make a talk about his visits to the picturesque parts of the Emerald Isle. The general entertainment will be furnished by "talent" from the Old St. Patrick's breadline and "Shantytown" and there will be reels and jigs and Irish songs and costumes galore.

Father Cox had another banner day yesterday in his drive for Sun-Telegraph subscriptions. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it brings a liberal cash commission to his unemployment relief fund.

By KENNETH A. NAGEL,
Cipher Editor.

Here's an new cipher. It's No. 72 contributed to us by Stanley R. Progar, of Springdale, Pa. It is rather complicated and should keep you busy for some time. If you have trouble with it, get the tip in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph. It's sure to help.

Attention, Mrs. Laura B. McConnell, of Houston, Pa. Your cipher is too difficult. As it doesn't follow the series we have been using it would not be fair to our fans. Make up a new cipher using letters or numbers. This will give every one a chance to obtain the answer.

Now for No. 71. Did you solve it? It was rather easy. You obtain the answer by following the code chart printed today. When you have completed the message you have:

"Good luck, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Orphan Hen Disrupts Baltimore Budget

BALTIMORE, March 17.—(AP.)—An orphan hen arrived at a district police station in the company of a Negro. The Negro got 27 days and nobody claimed the hen.

Unclaimed stolen property, according to police regulations, must be held a year. Police wonder what to do with the hen, which eats quantities of greens and cracked corn, not provided for on the police budget.

Quick! Stop That COLD!

Don't Let It Run Beyond the First Stage!

A cold ordinarily goes through three stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. To let a cold run beyond the first stage is inviting danger.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine taken at the first sign of a cold will usually stop it in one day. This famous tablet is effective because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, kills the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and tones the entire system. Anything less than that is toying with a cold. Get Grove's Laxative BROMO QUININE today and accept nothing else. Now two sizes—30c and 50c—at all druggists.

PINCHOT TO RAP ASSEMBLY ON UTILITIES

HARRISBURG, March 17.—(AP.)—The Legislature is steeling itself for another sharp assault from Gov. Pinchot—this time on the troublesome public utilities issue.

Monday night, the Governor rushed from a state dinner through a drenching rain to lash the Assembly in a demand for immediate action on unemployment relief. The new attack, the Capitol hears, may come at any time.

The entire program of utilities legislation—controversial in itself—has been further complicated by the Governor's break with his old friend and political ally, Dr. Clyde L. King, chairman of the Public Service Commission.

Administration and anti-administration leaders feel the Governor's utilities message will deal at length with the tangled incidents that led to the split with King.

If it doesn't, they assert, the Governor will deliver a second message dealing with the fuss over investigation of the utilities.

Oliver K. Eaton, Pittsburgh, quit as chief counsel for the Senate's utilities investigating committee. He said King should resign. The Governor backed Eaton and asked the Senate to return the King appointment. Senator Frank J. Harris, Pittsburgh, administration follower, urged immediate consideration of the Public Service Commission apointments.

The Senate ignored both—and King refused to quit.

Meanwhile, Franklin Spencer Edmonds, Philadelphia, a former state Senator, was chosen to replace Eaton.

FELIX CONTEST IN CAPITAL

The contest for the Thirty-second Congressional seat now held by M. J. Muldowney, Republican, switched to Washington today, as Attorney B. Robert Averbach arrived there to ask Congress to prohibit further ballot box investigations by counsel for Mrs. Anne Felix, Democrat, who is seeking to oust him.

Averbach yesterday petitioned the Federal Court to halt the proceedings, contending that Mrs. Felix's counsel is allowed only 40 days to examine witnesses, ballot boxes and prepare testimony, and that the 40 days ended last Friday.

G. Malcolm McDonald, attorney for Mrs. Felix, declared that examination of the boxes was delayed by legal and other interferences and that he believed Congress would set aside the 40-day limit and admit the testimony.

Amos Pinchot Hits Utility Monopolies

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—(AP.)—Dismissing technocratic ideals of a state run by experts as "old as Plato and perhaps as dead," Amos R. E. Pinchot, brother of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, urges a trial of democracy and capitalism "minus monopolistic control of public utilities."

In an address before the Civil Liberties Union last night, he advocated government ownership of public utilities and natural monopolies, such as railroads, telephone and telegraph services.

Werrenrath Asks Alimony Reduction

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP.)—Reinald Werrenrath, the singer, has appealed to the Supreme Court for judicial help in balancing his budget.

He filed a petition yesterday, setting forth that by a separation agreement with his first wife in 1927 he bound himself to pay her $15,000 a year, that his income then exceeded $60,000 annually, that now he is earning $500 a week and it is impossible for him to continue the payments.

DOGS GO BEGGING ON 2 LEGS!

Nature provided them with four for a reason. It's a law of balance . . . and applies to radio tubes as well as to automobiles, chairs, tables, even ourselves. Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar Tubes last because the vital elements are properly supported.

IF YOU could count them, you'd be up in the millions before you summed up all the vibrations your radio gives (and takes) in an evening's performance. And tubes stand the brunt of this. No wonder radio experts find the most frequent cause of poor reception to be defective tubes. Supported on only two legs the delicate vital elements naturally become unbalanced.

But not in Eveready Raytheons! Because Eveready Raytheons have patented 4-pillar support—four sturdy pillars instead of two, as in all other tubes, firmly guarding balance. Chairs have four legs. So do tables. Even we couldn't stand firmly upright without the four-square support of heel, toe, heel, toe.

These two extra pillars in Eveready Raytheons cost you no more. Yet with them you get protection against jolts, jars and vibration—which means surer, better reception and longer tube life. See the Eveready Raytheon Tube dealer in your neighborhood. He will gladly give you a demonstration.

Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar Tubes come in all types, to fit any kind of set. They cost no more. Yet they offer surer reception, longer life, and protection against the delicate vital elements becoming unbalanced.

Senator Long, Phil Baker On Air

Phil Baker, music jester extraordinary of the American stage, introduces a different kind of radio musical comedy in rapid-fire manner on KDKA tonight at 9:30 when he opens a revamped edition of the weekly variety show featuring Roy Shields' orchestra, the Ambassadors Quartet and the Neil Sisters, vocal trio. Playing the straight part with the comedian-accordionist in his mirth skits will be Harry McNaughton, to be known etherially throughout the series as Bottle the Butler.

Of high current interest is tonight's March of Time broadcast of dramatized news events on WJAS at 8:30. The Southern California earthquake and the fight in Congress for President Roosevelt's economy program, together with the Chief Executive's demand for immediate beer legislation and the altercation between Carter Glass and Huey Long, Virginia and Louisiana Senators, respectively, are the topics.

Senator Long himself goes on the air over NBC-KDKA at 10:30 p. m., speaking for 30 minutes on "How America Can Be Adjusted."

On WJAS at 10:15 George Henry Dern, Secretary of War, makes his first address as a member of the Roosevelt cabinet. The address, a "Toast to the United States of America," is broadcast from Boston.

The St. Patrick's Day influence dominates tonight's schedule, and special programs honoring Erin's patron saint have been prepared.

Phil Spitalny, directing his vocal-instrumental ensemble, offers a medley entitled "Irish Pictures" as a KDKA highlight at 8 . . . Simultaneously on WCAE, Jessica Dragonette and Frank Parker feature Irish airs.

Beer to Bring Waltz Back To Radio

By AIRCASTER

To judge by the sudden activity of musical arrangers up and down radio row, who are extraordinarily busy putting fanciful touches to new and old waltzes, the advent of legal beer will bring the waltz, or three-quarter time, into popular favor.

Why beer should do this is best explained, perhaps, by Leon Belasco, who points out that under the mellowing influence of malt and hops, dancers are happiest when calmly drifting about a dance floor.

It was the TNT properties of prohibition liquor, he explains, that impelled inebriated dancers to seek an outlet in frantic rhythms which popularized the present dancing tempos.

In their hectic rush to get on the air with beer songs, the program men possibly have overlooked the important item of choosing appropriate theme songs. With my habitual magnanimity, I have thought of them in this crisis, and have just completed a canvass of some of radio's most ingenious folk, whom I asked to submit suggestions. The results should, and will, I hope, go far toward assisting the musical gents in their dilemma.

These are the cream of the crop:

"Happy Days Are Here Again," Phil Spitalny.
"Mighty Lager Rose," Felix Ferdinando.
"Rhapsody in Brew," Eric Magriguera.
"Hansel and Pretzel," Lennie Hayton.
"Too Many Beers," George Givot.
"Two Bock Tim From Timbucto," Guy Lombardo.
"I'm Bringing a Red, Red Nose," Al Goodman.
"Ale, Ale, the Gang's All Here," "Bung" Crosby.
"If I Could Beer One Hour With You," George Olsen.
"Foam, Sweet Foam," Fred Berrens.
"Beerdrops," Jack Denny.
"Malts Me Around Again Willie," Jack Pearl.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Spring rains, spring sunshine, spring fever! Ain't nature grand? "It's marvelous," says Mrs. Edward Connor, of Oakmont, whose 5½-month-old chicken daily astounds the Connor household. Since this chicken started laying, on February 28, the eggs each day, with three exceptions, were double yoked. Yesterday she laid a beautiful large egg with three yokes, and if it happens again I'm going to get the egg. Can this be technocracy?

Dear Mrs. Forsythe—The reason you can't get immediate cash on a check drawn on a New York bank is that the bank where you present the check must be given the time to collect the money. The check must go to New York and be honored there and the credit placed to the bank at which you presented your check.

Howard Griffith, Jr., of Wilkinsburg, and J. T. Crawford, of West Newton, have answered the ball of yarn problem. The answer involves plenty of pi. But what gets me is that both seem to think the problem wasn't so tough and both no doubt would like harder problems, but both didn't get the same answers. And the worst of it all is that to the poor benumbed brain of the Trotter they both look right.

If you have missed your plate of false teeth and you were walking on Bennett street yesterday I might be able to help you find them.

We have been waiting for this one, after those jig-saw puzzle announcements for hospitals. R. F. G. contributes. The patients have trouble enough without tormenting them with those blankety puzzles, and W. C. D., in icy contempt of America's pastime, adds:

"Oh, sure! That's a swell idea. What's he wanta do—turn the hospitals into asylums?"

The idea of distributing the puzzles came from the readers and I want to thank you for the idea as well as the puzzles. It goes without saying that the recipients bestow their warm praises upon you also.

BUDGET FINALLY SHAPED AFTER SLASHES

County Heads Clash, Accept Woodside's Wage Proposals

Auditors for the County Commissioners and Controller were to meet today to complete final touches to the 1933 budget, which the Commissioners finished yesterday. Expenses during the year will amount to approximately $19,399,000, the Commissioners having slashed $1,771,000 from estimates of $21,171,000.

Of the economies effected, $88,000 represents salary reductions and dismissals. The Commissioners' auditors believe that tax collections, on 73 per cent basis, will bring in $19,642,000, or about $240,000 over expenses. Of the revenue, $2,450,000 will come from personal property taxes.

Commissioners C. C. McGovern and W. D. Mansfield engaged in a short, heated argument yesterday when Mansfield moved to accept the recommendations of Controller Robert G. Woodside for salary reductions in his office.

REDUCTIONS UPHELD

McGovern and Commissioner Barr wanted to go into salary board session, but Woodside refused. Mansfield said that inasmuch as Woodside's proposed cuts were greater than those suggested by the Commissioners, they should be accepted.

McGovern accused Mansfield of evading the question, which he denied. Finally Barr suggested the Commissioners call a salary board meeting to act on Woodside's recommendations. Woodside said he would not act as secretary and William T. Rees, the Commissioner's clerk, was named. The Commissioners in salary board session then accepted the recommendations.

Woodside announced his reductions were an economy of $18,360 in salaries, or about 18.8 per cent. The Commissioners had proposed cuts of about 17 per cent.

Woodside said he had turned in his automobile and would not need his chauffeur, who was transferred to the taxi system. Woodside was the first official to return part of his salary to the County, giving his personal check for $62.50 which represents 15 per cent of his pay for the first half of March.

CHALLENGES BOARD

County Treasurer Robert S. Cain, whose office payroll had been held up because he had retained more employes than the Commissioners had allowed on their adjusted salary schedule, visited them yesterday. Although refusing to go into salary board meeting, he convinced the Commissioners he needed all his help.

Cain said he was willing to go to court to determine whether the Commissioners have the right to change salaries and positions in his office without his calling the salary board meeting. He proposed:

"Let's go to bat on this question. There is no need of any personalities or politics entering into it. I am willing to go to court right now."

He explained his need for the four jobs which had been eliminated. When Cain refused to go into salary board meeting, the Commissioners held their own salary session and permitted the jobs to be reinstated.

Idle Year, Man Dies First Day on Job

The first day of work Clarence Fawcett, 52, of New Kensington, was able to get in a year ended fatally for him yesterday. He fell dead at the Pittsburgh stockyards on Herrs Island from a heart attack, according to the Coroner's report, a few hours after he went to work as a bricklayer. He is survived by his widow and three children.

Find Duquesne Man Dead in Garage

An investigation is being made by the Coroner of the death of Peter Schute, 50, of South Sixth street, Duquesne, a clerk for the Carnegie Steel Company. Schute was found by his family this morning in the garage with the doors closed and the motor of his car running, according to the Coroner's report.

Professionals Scorn Wealthy Chorus Girls

MISS BOBBIE BRODSLEY MISS VIRGINIA FRANCK

Competition of Junior Leaguers Not Taken Seriously

Society debs shine in the Junior League Follies, but they're flops in "big time"—take the word of six who earn their living by "hoofing."

Broadway reports that the pampered daughters of society are turning to the stage to earn a little extra cash do not alarm the chorus girls in the musical comedy "Of Thee I Sing." All but one of them agreed that rich girls are "out."

Backstage at the Nixon the dancers said it was "only bosh" that the debs are taking the bread and butter out of their mouths. Red-headed Virginia Franck said:

Blonde Baun Sturtz sniffed:

"I know a couple of society buds in New York who spend $35 to taxi to and from the theater on a $30 a week salary. They don't need the money."

Martha Maggard, a belle from San Antonio, disagreed with the rest of the cast. She exclaimed:

"We're not the 'idle rich' any more! We need the money just the same as any other girls and I believe in the spoils going to the victor."

Beautiful Bobbie Brodsley, of Miami, cut in:

"I know all about these social registerites — I helped several get their first breaks behind the footlights. The grease paint is always thrilling to them at first, but it never lasts."

Chorused Mary Mascher, Peggy Greene and Barbara Hamilton:

"Aye, aye, mates—the score is now 6 to 1."

And added Miss Mascher:

FIRED WORKERS GET RELIEF

More than a score of county employes, dismissed and told to apply for pensions in the County Commissioners economy program, will be given work for another month or six weeks under a resolution adopted by the Commissioners yesterday. A special payroll is to be set up so that the men and women can get back to work temporarily while waiting for pensions.

The present pension fund is said to be insolvent and payments from it have been suspended.

If the pension bill pending in Harrisburg fails and no other relief is afforded the Commissioners, they say, will liquidate the present fund or let it go "on the rocks of its own accord."

LABOR UPHOLDS CITY SCHOOL STANDARDS

Union Leaders Pledge Fight on Proposed Appropriation Cut

Indorsement of plans to retain present standards of education was given by the Central Labor Union at a meeting in the Carpenters Building, Fourth avenue, last night, following an address by Prof. John H. Adams, a member of the Allegheny County Committee on School Legislation and principal of Perry High School.

P. T. Fagan, of the United Mine Workers of America, and president of the Central Union, presided. The meeting was attended by representatives of 125 local branches of organized labor unions, and John J. Kane, member of the General Assembly from Allegheny County.

CITES DANGERS

Prof. Adams stressed two dangers as threatening Pennsylvania educational standards, that appropriations will be cut so much schools will be unable to provide courses adapted to present needs, and that training requirements for teachers will be lowered to justify smaller salaries. In Pittsburgh, he said, there is the added danger of an attempt to throw the schools into politics.

He said:

"I am asking you to join with friends of public education toward the end that children shall not be made to suffer needlessly as a result of economic conditions for which they are the least responsible."

FIGHT REDUCTION

In response, Fagan replied:

"National, state, and local groups of organized labor have always been supporters of public education. They fought for its establishment, fought for its continuance, fought for free text books and for every other advance. I think you can be assured that organized labor is not in favor of any reduction in the standards of education."

Kane said in part:

"Next to unemployment relief, education is the biggest problem before the Legislature this year. Income from taxes is not enough to cover operating expenses. There is only one of two things to do, cut expenses or find other sources of revenue.

"It is estimated that $2,000,000 could be raised from present tax-exempt property, such as that of utilities, in Pittsburgh alone. If we could raise tax funds from such sources, which can and should pay their share, there would be no need to cut the school budget."

Owner of Lindy's 'Alma Mater' Dies

PACKING COMPANY'S HAM-LADEN TRUCK THAT UPSET IN STREET AT FEDERAL AND NORTH

The confusion on the North Side today as a Swift truck, loaded with smoked hams, turned over. Driver Ralph H. Frank, 29, 5831 Morrowfield avenue, explained that he upset as he swerved to avoid a collision with an automobile. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

CRAYON CLUE TRAPS BURGLAR

A sign painter was held in the Central Police Station today because, police charged, he dropped a yellow crayon pencil after entering a chain grocery store at 3702 Forbes street, Wednesday night.

When Detective John B. Hanna found the pencil near the refrigerator, from which $31.99 had been stolen, he questioned store employes and learned of a man who painted the store signs in a rear room.

Believing the crayon had been dropped by the thief, Hanna and Detective John Daschbach confronted Albert Caraccia, 26, in his room in the Atwood Hotel, asking whether the pencil belonged to him. He admitted its ownership, but denied the robbery. After four hours of questioning he admitted, the detectives said, that he entered the store through the skylight and took the money, having seen the manager hide it in the refrigerator.

Caraccia was charged with being a suspicious person.

Uncle Sam Calls Democrats When He Needs Doctor

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We sat down today and tried to figure out what would have happened if the banks and the breweries had opened the same day.

All our famous men would have exhausted themselves rushing around making speeches, dedicating cornerstones and launching bottles without the benefit of battleships.

We are glad that things are happening one at a time. Even though they are coming so we think they're twins.

We're getting the same kind of action that Col. Moseby gave the Union troops. Get there fust with the mostest men and don't take no for an answer.

Congress only squawked on one proposition. Economy. You can't blame them much. The Republicans run up the debts and the Democrats have to take the slash in wages.

It's been that way since we can remember. A Democratic victory means America has called in the doctor.

The G. O. P. starts the stampede and the Democrats undo the damage and tie up the loose ends Proving that only the game fish swim upstream.

FIRST ARREST IN FIXLESS TAG

Distinction of being the first motorist to be arrested for ignoring the city's new "fixless" traffic tags today went to Robert Dawm, 32, of 3720 Brighton road, North Side.

A central police sergeant solved the problem of what bail to hold such a violator by doubling the amount of fine due the city, making a $6 bond. Dawm was arrested by Motorcycle Patrolman Thomas Morley, of Traffic Court, in William Penn place. He is alleged to have ignored a $1 parking tag issued in January. A Traffic Court summons, costing an additional $2 was ignored likewise, Morley said.

Honors for Woman Killed in Bombing

ROME, March 17.—(AP.)—John M. Di Sylvestro, of Philadelphia, whose wife was killed last January when their Philadelphia home was bombed, was received today by Premier Mussolini, who expressed indignation at the attack.

Mrs. Di Sylvestro's name, said the Premier, will be included in the list of Fascist martyrs. The two also talked of the affairs of the Sons of Italy in America, an order of which Mr. Di Sylvestro is the president.

Will Rogers

California passed the racing bill. Maybe Texas, the greatest horse raising state in the union, will allow one to run for his oats. Beer is coming back, wine is coming back, Greta Garbo is coming back, Sister Aimee is coming back, Senators salaries cut 15 per cent, that's fair, movie salaries cut 50 per cent (not so hot), newspaper columnists' salaries cut (that's a crime), stage comedians salaries cut (that ain't fair), but if Roosevelt says it is, why it's ok.

Yours, WILL.

2 OHIO TOWNS ALSO HIT BY OVERFLOW

Thousands Marooned, Business Houses Forced to Close

WHEELING, W. Va., March 17.—(AP.)—The rampant Ohio River is receding today after reaching 41.66 feet, the highest stage in 20 years, and causing damage estimated by police at $100,000.

Thousands of persons on Wheeling Island and on the south side of the city proper still are marooned in their homes and preparing to clean away the mud brought by the flood.

Business and transportation facilities disrupted by the unruly stream for two days still are handicapped, since the water's recession is slow. Several large stores in the business district were closed.

Police patrolling one-fourth of the city in boats helped stranded families to get to the stores for food and other supplies.

Schools were closed, traffic was virtually discontinued, the Baltimore and Ohio and the Pennsylvania Railroad yards were under water at several places, and only one highway—east to Washington, Pa.—was open.

PARKERSBURG HIT

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., March 17.—(AP.)—A portion of the Parkersburg warehouse district was flooded last night as the Ohio River reached a stage of 41 feet.

Several hundred persons residing in that section and in lowland trict was flooded today as the homes and were cared for by city officials and relief workers in emergency quarters.

Rivermen predicted the river would reach 42 feet, six feet above flood stage.

MARIETTA, O., March 17.—(INS.)—With practically the entire business district under water, the Ohio River approached its flood crest here today at 41 feet. Four-fifths of the business district and approximately one-quarter of the residential area was flooded. Only one paved highway, U. S. Route No. 21 to Cambridge, remained open to traffic.

POMEROY, O., March 17.—(INS.)—Surging over two-thirds of Pomeroy's main business street, flood waters of the Ohio, which was expected to reach a crest of 52 feet, threatened serious damage today.

Several business establishments have been evacuated. The first concern forced out of business when the river broke over its banks was the town's only movie house.

CLEAN UP HERE

This was "house-cleaning" day for those who live in the flats, better known as the lowlands adjacent to the three rivers here. As the flood stage slowly receded from its crest of 29.6, the falling waters left layers of mud and debris within the houses the rivers reached during their rampage.

Meanwhile, river men expected to start work soon salvaging the river craft wrecked or sunk when the fleet of construction boats broke loose in the swift current and were smashed against bridge piers.

Doesn't Wish to Be 100, Says Woman, 97

Approaching the century mark, Mrs. Sarah Babb, of 15 Brushton avenue, celebrated her ninety-seventh birthday yesterday. Although still active and with good eyesight, Mrs. Babb has no desire of living to be a hundred. She said:

"I have worked hard all my life and that's why I have lived so long."

With the exception of her daughter, Mrs. George Ashton, with whom she lives, she is now alone in the world. A last brother, Nelson D. Madden, died about a month ago in Yorkville, O., at the age of 91.

Her maiden name was Sarah Madden. She was born in Freeport O., in 1836, her parents being among the earliest settlers.

September 14, 1865, she was married to Andrew Babb at St. Clairesville, O., 20 days after he had been mustered out of the Union Army. He died January 1, 1900.

Charges Bride Mourned Man on Honeymoon

Within an hour after their marriage his wife tried to telephone to a boy friend, and when she learned he was dead she wept, Morris Levin, of 2322 Shady avenue, testified before Judge W. Heber Dithrich in asking a divorce from Mrs. Laura Levin.

He said it was his third venture with marriage and the telephone incident spoiled his honeymoon.

Levin told the court that his wife would not eat at the same table with his children, slept on the floor, threatened to kill herself and made his life miserable.

Divorce suits were filed by Marie Wright against Wilson M. Wright and by Ella J. Lightell against Samuel M. Lightell.

Divorce decrees were granted to Louise Giglio from Antonio Giglio, Emma Newsome from Lee C. Newsome, Jennie Berkowitz from Joseph Berkowitz and Louise G. Ashe from Edmund M. Ashe.

Broadways of the World
All In A Day
By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE CAIRO-JERUSALEM EXPRESS:—That's a nice name—the "Cairo to Jerusalem Express." It's a nice name, even though there's but one train a day and you have to change three times before you reach your destination. More, it takes some 16 hours by rail—and if you're lucky enough to catch a plane, you can cover the distance in about 160 minutes.

Strange thing about that plane service business, by the way. Back in the States, I had heard so much about flying in this part of the world that I began to wonder if anybody used trains. I was told so many airplane tales that I felt fairly certain a machine left every hour for somewhere or other.

Don't let them kid you, brothers and sisters. There's exactly one plane a week in the passenger service around this section—and you'd better not lay the odds on that one either. They talk a lot about flying hereabouts, but that seems to be as far as it goes. I've heard airplane conversations by the carload, but the discussions always peter out long before the take-off.

But there I go again. Here I am on a train that's only two hours from Jerusalem—and I'm writing about planes. I suppose if I were on a plane bound for India, I'd be writing an article about the train service around Rockaway Beach. Oh, well—

I would hardly recommend this excursion to those ladies and gentlemen who insist upon traveling in comfort. The first part of the journey is not so bad. In fact, it's rather good. But you mustn't let that fool you. They give you the roast duck first and then make you eat the spinach.

In order to get to Jerusalem, you leave Cairo at 6 o'clock at night on one of those beautiful white trains that Egypt alone knows how to produce. You buy yourself a seat in the Pullman—and it's a far finer Pullman than those we have in America—and you enjoy a good meal on gold service, no less.

All of which is very nice—but that's only the warm-up. You just have about sufficient time to swallow your coffee when the train pulls into a point called Kantarah, on the Suez Canal.

You change here for a ferry across the canal. It sits very low in the water, and by the time all the passengers, baggage and cattle have been placed upon it, you'd hate to swear that you weren't on a submarine.

Almost anyone in Egypt is able to throw a coin across the canal in spite of the fact that they haven't been practicing much since the depression. The journey is very short; almost nothing, in fact. But the boys in command tackle the job just as seriously as though they were handling an ocean liner.

The whistles blow, the bells clang and there is much tugging and pulling at a rusty old gate that is on its last hinges. The tiny craft gives a sudden jerk and, before the jerk is quite over, you are on the other side. The change and the trouble that goes with it for that tiny distance are extremely stupid. Why a bridge hasn't been built long before this is a question I am unable to answer.

An inquiry along those lines revealed the fact that such a bridge was now in the course of construction.

"However," said the station master, a very serious gentleman, "it will be two years before the bridge is finished."

"Well, I'm sorry," I replied kiddingly, "but I can't wait that long."

"That's too bad," was the earnest response. "You're missing a wonderful bridge." . . .

After the inevitable customs examination, you are ushered to your sleeping accommodations in the train that is to take you as far as Lydda, in Palestine, where you are compelled to change again.

You can retire immediately if you are of such a mind, but Hellinger has never been of such a mind. Inasmuch as the train didn't pull out for almost two hours, I had plenty of time to wander around. I didn't get much material out of the mosquitoes, the desert, or the stray dogs in the vicinity—but I did encounter one individual who was able to hand me a little material.

His name was Hafiz, and he is in the dinky little station as the representative of Thomas Cook & Son. It is his duty to see that you are as comfortable as possible, that the customs officers do not handle you too roughly and to make certain that none of the tourists fall into the canal. That last portion of his duties, he confessed, was his chief problem.

Over a drink of alleged brandy at the highly unattractive station bar, Hafiz waxed philosophical. He told me of the many people he had transferred from the station across the canal to this one, and of the numerous Americans who had been generous with him in their tipping.

"Alas," he murmured, "those days seem far behind now. Americans are few and far between, and my tips have faded almost into nothingness. Nobody tips like the American."

He sighed.

"Of course," he went on, "as in everything else, we get some bad Americans among the good ones. I have had practically all of them who have come through here in recent years—Mr. Waterman, of the fountain pen, and Mr. Reynolds, of the tobacco, and very many others. I never received less than $2, and once I was given a check for $50 by a meat man from Chicago.

"Did I say never? Well, there was one exception. One of the wealthiest men in the United States"—and he mentioned the name of the owner of one of the greatest fortunes in our country—"arrived here about two years ago with his family and some 30 pieces of luggage.

"I took care of everything for him and, believe me, it was real work. When I was all through, he gave me 30 cents in your money. I looked at it—and handed it back.

"'You keep it, sir,' I said very nicely. 'I am at your service and I would not want you to overtip'."

I asked the natural question.

"Did he take it back?" I inquired.

"Yes," was the mournful reply. "He certainly did" . . .

Well, this third and last train is nearing Jerusalem now and I want to get just one little additional Cairo episode off my chest before I forget it. When I arrived at Shepheard's Hotel in the city, it was decidedly cold the first night.

Since they have no heating system in that hotel, I asked the manager how a man kept warm in those rooms. He was most gracious about it. And in five minutes, I had two of those tiny electric heaters in my room. They weren't much good, but as long as they were there, I didn't bother to have them removed. I didn't use them, but the manager had been so courteous that I didn't want to insult him.

When I received my bill, I laughed out loud. I had been charged 80 cents a day—"for heating! . . .

CAST STRANDED IN HOME TOWN

Probably George Bernard Shaw has never heard of Jimmy Moore, although both are playwrights.

Great as he may be, Mr. Shaw probably has never shown as much tenacity as Jimmy Moore & Co.

Jimmy is unemployed, as most playwrights are. So are most of the cast of 14 men and women who act with him in his war play, which Henry Glance helped to write.

An Englishman, Jimmy served in England's forces in the World War. He's been in this country 12 years, living at 6066 Butler street.

But Jimmy was writing a play about the war—a play that required 18 months writing. He calls it "The Unknown."

The first performance was given the other night at Moose Temple. About two dozen people turned out. One of them was George Seibel, the Sun-Telegraph critic, who publicly admired "the courage of the gallant playwright and his heroic actors."

And now Jimmy has a chance to get his play back on the boards. He has bookings in Rochester and Beaver Falls—that is, if he can dig up a few dollars to transport his cast and scenery that far.

That interesting group of musically-minded men and women, the Pittsburgh Madrigal Singers, is planning its second annual concert to be given a week from tonight at 8:30 o'clock in Carnegie Music Hall.

Gracious Mrs. James Stephen Martin is the director. Mrs. Martin tells me the group is interested in its art for art's sake—and never tries to do more than pay its expenses.

The singers, specializing in music of the early masters, sing a cappella. For variety, the second part of the program will feature ensemble singing.

This year, in recognition of the fiftieth anniversary of the death of Richard Wagner, the singers will devote the second part of the program to mosaics from the works of the great composer.

The names of those serving as patronesses are associated with the best in music in Pittsburgh.

Sponsor Concert

Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson, herself a singer, heads the list.

Mrs. W. C. Dierks, Mrs. R. D. Campbell, Mrs. T. J. Gillespie, Jr., Mrs. Lewis Goehring, Mrs. Fred F. Rohrer, Mrs. Fred McKee, Mrs. Joseph Marsh, Mrs. Fred Lissfelt, Mrs. Harvey B. Gaul and Miss May Beegle will be patronesses.

Others will be Mrs. William Maclay Hall, a staunch supporter of Pittsburgh's own symphony; Mrs. William F. Knox, the violinist, and Mrs. Kennedy Irwin.

The patron list to date includes Ernest Hillman, Arthur Janner and W. Moorhead Holland.

A group of Pittsburghers will be off for Harrisburg bright and early Tuesday morning—at five minutes to eight.

Going to Capital

They will go on a special day train, and will visit the Senate chamber in the interest of the city manager bill, and then return to Pittsburgh in the evening, having luncheon and dinner on the train.

Among those going will be the Franklin C. Irishes, the William Booth Trainers, Lydia Irish, Mrs. Arthur E. Braun and Elizabeth Braun, Mrs. John O. Miller, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, Mrs. George Singer Ebbert, Mrs. Frederic Ickes Merrick, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Mrs. Frank A. Bond, Mrs. A. H. Bowman, Mrs. E. H. Club Federation Plans Cruise To Bermuda

The State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, under the direction of its press and publicity chairman, Mrs. Elmer E. Melick, of Strath Haven Inn, Swarthmore, is sponsoring a six-day trip to Bermuda aboard the Transylvania. Incidentally, the ship will be the home of the party during the entire trip, even on the two days in Bermuda.

The boat sails from New York at 11 o'clock Monday and returns Saturday. Both men and women are making reservations for the trip.

Mrs. S. B. Cuthbert Talks on Films At Congress

Women's responsibility for the kind of films motion picture producers release was stressed in an informal talk given yesterday before the drama department of the Congress of Clubs by Mrs. S. B. Cuthbert, district chairman of motion pictures in the State Federation.

Mrs. Cuthbert also commented on the force of motion pictures as propaganda and of the changes that have been made in types of pictures. Twenty-six of what are known as all-family pictures (those recommended for all ages) were previewed within three months recently.

In downtown theaters, only 3 per cent of the audiences are children, while in outlying movies the percentage runs up to eight, Mrs. Cuthbert stated. In mentioning some motion picture regulations she said a baby on a set earns $75 an hour and is not permitted to work more than one hour a day. The salary is placed high to discourage the use of babies in pictures, she said.

C. J. Latta, of Warner Brothers, was a second speaker. He gave interesting insights into the motion picture business from the time of the nickelodeon and spoke, too, of the high type of person and generosity to be found in the industry.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

With a bow to St. Patrick throw aside all restraint and plan a luncheon menu which goes green riotously. It's an accommodating menu; if you're entertaining in the afternoon or evening, choose two courses and you'll have perfect party refreshments. And if you want to make substitutions, you'll find here two second-choice recipes which are colorful and simple.

Cocktail Bouquet
Ham Mold with Green Peas
Stuffed Celery Shamrock Rolls
Endive and Water Cress Salad
Pistachio Ice Cream
Tiny Sponge Cakes, Iced Green
Green and White Mints Coffee

COCKTAIL BOUQUET—Fit small paper doilies into cocktail glasses and turn back over edge. Mix large white grapes (seeded but not skinned) with melon or apple balls. Sprinkle with orange juice. Chill thoroughly. Fill glasses and garnish with green cherries and mint.

HAM MOLD WITH GREEN PEAS—1¾ pounds lean ham, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, ½ cup grated cheese, 3 eggs, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Cook ham until tender and chop very fine. Mix the flour to a smooth paste with a little cold water. Add to the milk and cook for a few minutes, stirring constantly. Add ham, cheese, beaten eggs and pepper. Pour into a well-greased ring mold, set in pan of hot water and bake in a moderate over (350 degrees F.) about 25 minutes—until firm. Turn out on hot platter and fill with hot buttered peas.

CREAMED OYSTERS AND MUSHROOMS—3 tablespoons fat, 5 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1½ cups milk, ½ cup chopped mushrooms, 1 pint oysters.

Heat fat, add flour, salt and pepper and mix until smooth. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook over hot water 8 minutes. Fry mushrooms in a little fat until tender. Drain oysters, clean and pick over. Heat in oyster liquor until edges curl. Add to white sauce with mushrooms. Serve in patty shells with small mounds of chopped spinach.

SHAMROCK ROLLS—Make a yeast roll dough. Shape in tiny balls and brush with melted butter. Place three in each section of greased muffin tins, and bake.

COCOANUT FLAN—Make 2½ cups soft custard and add ¾ cup cocoanut. Chill thoroughly. Put in dessert glasses and top with whipped cream which has been delicately colored with green coloring. Decorate with chopped green cherries.

CONE COOKIES

A very appropriate cookie to serve with your St. Patrick's Day menu.

½ cup sifted powdered sugar; gradually add:

¼ cup milk, beating constantly, alternately with 1 cup flour, ¼ teaspoon almond extract and ½ teaspoon vanilla and beat vigorously.

Add vegetable coloring to make a delicate green. Butter back of a baking sheet and spread the mixture very thinly with spatula. With the back of knife mark in rather large squares. Bake in very slow oven so that color is not destroyed. Remove from oven and while still warm, roll up to form cones. The cookies must be kept warm while rolling, as they become very crisp when cold.

ST. PATRICK'S SALAD—6 good sized greening apples, 1 dozen walnuts, small head of lettuce, 1 stalk celery, 1 small tart orange, ½ cup mayonnaise, oil and vinegar dressing.

Cut apples across, each making a bowl and stand. Hollow out the bowl portion and put all in ice water to which a teaspoon of salt and the juice of a half lemon has been added. This will keep the fruit firm and white. Chop celery, cut the orange in small neat pieces and remove seeds and break up the nut meats, keeping a whole meat to decorate each cup. Use some of the orange juice with the oil and vinegar dressing, instead of the vinegar. When ready to serve drain and dry apples, quickly cut up pulp, add to the other ingredients and fill cups, sprinkling generously with the dressing. Make the handles of orange peel, scraping off yellow and stand on a bed of lettuce with a topping of mayonnaise. Serve as quickly as possible so all will be crisp.

GREEN TOMATO PIE—2 cups green tomatoes, sliced; 1 cup sugar, ⅛ pound butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, juice of ½ lemon.

Use firm, well developed tomatoes just beginning to turn color. Slice very thin and combine with lemon juice.

Make a rich pastry dough sufficient for a two-crust pie, replacing with butter, half of the shortening usually used. Blend half of the sugar, salt and butter with the tablespoon of flour, and sprinkle over pastry lining the pie plate. Cover with sliced tomatoes and lemon juice, and balance of sugar, salt and butter, then sprinkle with cinnamon. Prick top crust, place in position and brush with evaporated milk which will give the pie a rich brown finish. Bake in hot oven, reducing heat after first 15 minutes (about 45 minutes).

PICNIC MEAT ROLL—1¼ pounds beef, pork and veal mixed, 3 tablespoons onions, 3 tablespoons green pepper, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 egg (raw), 1 cup milk, 1 cup crumbs, 2 hard cooked eggs.

To finely chopped meat, onion and pepper, add remaining ingredients, excepting hard cooked eggs, and mix thoroughly. Turn out on to slightly floured board. Place eggs in center of meat, shape into a roll and dredge withh flour. Put in a roasting pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 45 minutes. Serve sprinkled with chopped parsley.

Hollow tomatoes. Place in a pan with a little water and bake for 10 minutes in moderate oven 350 degrees. Remove from oven and drop an egg into each tomato and return to oven and bake until eggs set—firm but not hard. Eggs may be sprinkled with bread crumbs, seasoned and dotted with butter. Serve on rounds of toast and pour over all, following sauce:

SAUCE—4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 1 green pepper (chopped), 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper, paprika and celery salt to taste.

Potato Is Economical Food Of High Nutritive Value

Its High Content of Carbohydrates Recommends the Frequent Inclusion of This Vegetable in Diet of Adults and Children

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Ph.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

To choose and purchase food for a large family is indeed a task. Some good things are overlooked. But the potato is one item that the busy housewife rarely forgets. It is a nutritious food and can be served in a variety of ways.

You are familiar with the many styles in which potatoes are served. Boiled, baked, mashed, French fried, creamed, hashed brown, Lyonaisse and Julienne, are a few of the most popular forms.

To me, potato salad is the most tempting of them all. A friend of mine makes the most delicious potato salad I have ever eaten. Her frinds request the recipe, but somehow do not succeed with it as she does.

Contrary to a common belief, French fried potatoes and other fried potatoes are readily digested, provided they are properly prepared and not eaten in excess. When you remove the potatoes from the deep fat, place them on soft brown paper. This will removes the surplus fat. Another point to remember is to cook them partially before frying. A minimum amount of fat is then required.

NUTRITIVE VALUE

Potatoes differ from other foods in that little nutritive value is lost by cooking. The potato consists of water, starch, mineral selats, proteins and vitamins. Though the potato in itself is not a perfect food, it aids in making a well-balanced meal when served with vegetables, eggs, meat, fish and milk.

It is a splendid source of carbohydrates and is often spoken of as an "energy producing" food. It has played an important part in the saving of many lives during famines.

Potatoes are an economical food. They are within reach of everyone and can be purchased all year round. Fortunately, it is a food that does not spoil easily and consequently can be shipped great distances.

BEST POTATOES HERE

I cannot understand why less potatoes are eaten in this country than abroad. We grow the best potatoes in the world, yet we do not eat them as frequently or in such quantities as our European friends. It is probable that acidity, so common among Americans, would be less frequent if potatoes were more commonly included in the diet. The potato is alkaline in reaction and prevents a tendency towards acidity.

It is indeed difficult to overestimate the importance of the potato in the diet. It is a necessary food for the young as well as the old. Potatoes contain certain substances essential for proper growth and development. Such diseases as scurvy and pellagra are rarely, if ever, found in districts of the country where the potato is generally used.

This valuable food item may be given to the infant as early as the tenth month. Two tablespoonsful may be given three or four times a week. At one year of age potatoes may be given the child every day, in combination with green vegetables.

Cheswick Burgess Freed of Fraud

LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE By BURTON J. HENDRICK

Restful Years Spent At Skibo by Carnegie

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
By BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

The marriage of Cluny Macpherson, in 1897, had made it necessary for the Carnegies to find a new summer home. The birth of their only child, a daughter, was a more important reason for the change. How closely Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie and the Clan Macpherson had drawn together in 10 years of intimate association was shown on this occasion.

The event took place in New York, March 30, 1897, but the news had a traditional reception in Badenoch. "There were nine bonfires," Carnegie wrote, "upon as many Cluny hills, to celebrate the advent of little Saint Margaret, and such rejoicing! Such evidences of attachment tell!"

The baby was named after Carnegie's mother, and a fixed abode in the heather was regarded as her birthright. In the autumn the search began for a property that would fulfill the family's requirements.

The Duke of Sutherland, the owner of the larger part of the county, had several places for sale. All these were toured and inspected, with disappointing results.

Mr. Hew Morrison then suggested Skibo, an estate which, though one of the most famous and beautiful in northern Scotland, had suffered vicissitudes in recent times and was at the moment in a condition of neglect. Carnegie had insisted on certain essentials in his intended domain; it must have plenty of land, trout and salmon fishing, woods and hills, lochs and streams, a location bordering on the sea, and, even more important, a beautiful waterfall. On Mr. Morrison's assurance that Skibo met most of these demands, a wagonette was taken at Bonar Bridge, and the two men started on a jogging eight mile drive. Carnegie's face brightened as they entered the quiet road.

A Beautiful Scene

No better introduction to his future abiding place could have been provided. Always at the right lay the Kyle of Sutherland, a shining stretch of water that sometimes came close to the carriage, meeting a precipitous bank, then retreated to a distance, the land forming the greenest of meadows, with grazing sheep and cattle, occasionally dotted by a farmhouse or ruined mill. The age-long road, mottled by the shade of overhanging trees, lined with low moss and lichen-covered stone walls, skirted on the left a rising hill darkly overgrown with bracken, in places wooded with oak, birch and larch, while now and then were open stretches, giving every opportunity to the lively heather. The silence, the softness of the air, the mingling of land and sea, were in keeping with the varied and genial quality of the whole estate. The bordering country, reaching from the Kyle far northward into the hills, formed part of Skibo—a small portion of the 32,000 acres that eventually comprised the Carnegie proprietorship.

For with its future lord it was a case of love at first sight. When the carriage turned into the "policies," and the gleaming expanse of Dornoch Firth and the North Sea finally came into view, Carnegie exclaimed, "There's just the place for my yacht!" The shabby condition of the castle, the disrepair into which the cottages and land had fallen, proved no discouragement, and in a brief period the manor of the ancient Roman Catholic Bishops of Caithness had passed into Carnegie's hands. By the time the struggle with steel had ended, the house was practically complete.

Carnegie never affected the manner of a Scottish "Laird" in the old-fashioned sense. He enjoyed the title but made little effort to live up to it. Journalists and artists liked to picture him in kilt and tartan; Carnegie delightfully collected these caricatures and sometimes framed them, one that gave unusual pleasure being Bernard Partridge's full page sketch in Punch, exhibiting the Laird, clothed in complete regalia, the tartan cleverly taking shape as the Stars and Stripes. Yet the sober truth is that such romantic garments were avoided. In all his years at Skibo he appeared once only in Highland garb—borrowed for the occasion.

His Usual Costume

His informal dress was always the same, whether for golfing, fishing or yachting—a light gray Norfolk jacket and knickerbockers, or "plus fours," with corresponding peaked cap. This outward presentment indicated how little the American millionaire aped the habits and manners of a feudal lord. His disinclination to do so was severely criticized on occasion: he did not show that personal attention of the tenants, it was urged, demanded by his position.

Carnegie laughed at these strictures. He was nearly 65 when his "lairdship" began, too old to cultivate the traditional routine, and to attempt it would be merely masquerade. The fact is that the landlord who keeps in personal touch with his tenants, calls them and their children by name, and is the counsellor in all their intimate affairs, is a type little seen today even in Scotland, and Carnegie made no pretense of belonging to a vanishing race.

But that the tenantry were treated with generosity goes without saying. The magic change that followed the new incumbents — the road constructions, repairs on old houses, erections of castle, houses and other buildings, the great sums of money poured into the region for miscellaneous improvements—brought a new spiritual and economic era.

The changing moods of Skibo found ready response in the master's soul, for the place was about as various as Carnegie himself, and, in its constant appeal to a multitude of interests, formed an ideal reflection of the proprietor.

Carnegie had three regular pastimes: practically every day he went swimming, golfed and fished. For certain other out-of-door recreations, such as shooting and stalking, he cared nothing. Landing a gamy trout or salmon did not offend his sensibilities, but slaughtering the birds of the air and the beasts of the forests was never looked upon as time well spent.

A mob of horsemen and a pack of frenzied hounds pursuing a fox to its lair stirred his execration. Amusements of this kind Skibo could provide for such as desired them, but Carnegie never joined the parties.

The quieter humors, perhaps, appealed most enticingly to this graduate of the steel mills. They awoke his deepest elements—the Gaelic strain. "I am off to the moors, all alone," he writes Morley. "Mist on the hills. But I'm a Celt, not a prosaic Englishman like—well, like a very good fellow I know."

Awakened by Piper

Another paragraph sums up the significance of the place: "I am so busy working at fun! Fishing, yachting, golfing. Skibo never so delightful; all so quiet! A home at last." "If heaven is more beautiful than this," he wrote the Duchess of Sutherland, "someone has made a mistake."

Each day at eight Carnegie was awakened by his piper, a morning harbinger who started his notes at a distance, gradually approaching the castle, which he circled, pausing and skirling beneath the windows of the guests. All went to breakfast to the tones of the organ, which discoursed also throughout the meal. "My morning devotions," Carnegie called this music.

Sir George Adam Smith, principal of Aberdeen University, gives an insight into the kind of talk that enlivened Carnegie's parties. As to the picnics on the moors: "After lunch, as we lay upon the heather, someone started the question, which was the favorite book of all of us, which ultimately became: If each of us were condemned to live on a desert island and allowed to take with him only one author, what author would he choose? It was understood that the Bible was not to be discussed.)

"Someone said 'Shakespeare.'

"'Well,' exclaimed Morley, 'I don't agree with you. You would be disappointed, for two-thirds of Shakespeare is mere padding.'

"Carnegie said, 'But the rest is worth a lifetime's study by itself.'

"Dr. Whyte said, 'I would choose Dante.'

"Either Carnegie or Morley replied, 'Fancy Dante for a desert island! How gloomy!'

"'And you, Mr. Carnegie,' said someone, 'what would you take?'

"'Herbert Spencer,' said Mr. Carnegie at once."

The King's Visit

One afternoon in October, 1902, a telegram came to Skibo from Dunrobin Castle, the seat of the Duke of Sutherland, a few miles away. This conveyed the information that King Edward, then a guest of the Duke, was on his way to call on Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie.

At the moment Carnegie was enjoying his daily siesta and the news, when he was awakened, rather startled him. He jumped up, however, and prepared to give an appropriate welcome.

Glancing out the window, the King's motor was visible proceeding up the driveway, and Carnegie, clad in his informal togs, met His Majesty at the doorway.

The piper had barely time to get into his Highland garb, and the organist, who had been in the swimming pool, just managed to scramble into his clothes and strike up "God Save the King" as the royal guest appeared.

The next hour was one of the

Suits of First Importance in the New Spring Fashions

By KAY JOHNSON

THE SUITS this spring come in such a variety that no woman need fear her inability to wear one. If a strictly tailored suit isn't becoming to you choose one with a bellboy jacket that stops snug at the waist, or the newer finger tip length jacket, or better still, one with a knee length coat. There may be emphasis on the shoulders or, if you prefer, a cape, long or short; straight or flared.

THE SWAGGER suit in the center has a coat that is dark in contrast to a light skirt. This might be in two tones of grey, or in dark brown with a lighter skirt in brownish grey. Square shoulders are achieved by French seaming at the yoke, which continues in the back and is also repeated at the low armhole. A simple turn-over collar, large patch pockets and metal clips that look like old-fashioned hair curlers complete the coat. The skirt is slightly high at the waist and has a side opening with two clips.

THE THIRD suit shown is the classic tailored suit of a heavy grey material similar to flannel. The pointed lapels are slightly exaggerated to emphasize the snug fit of the jacket. The blouse is of simple white pique with a little bow that ties high on the neck.

DETECTIVE TALE TRAPS FUGITIVE

BUTTE, Mont., March 17.—(AP.)—Harry Bushnell, alias Vern Sevren, 42, a respected resident of Butte for several years, was held at the city jail here today and City Detective Frank Roe said he had admitted he was an escaped convict from the Michigan Penitentiary.

Police said a description of Bushnell recently published in a detective story magazine was brought to their attention and his arrest followed. He had been serving a 5 to 10-year term on a first degree assault charge, Roe said.

When detectives went to Bushnell's home yesterday he was at work in a mine but he reported at police headquarters at the request of officers. Roe said he denied he was the man wanted in Michigan until a set of fingerprints was taken, then admitted his identity.

Life of Andrew Carnegie

most delightful in Skibo's annals. The King visited all parts of the house, looked with admiration at the swimming pool and praised Carnegie for his treatment of the crofters. Looking out the window he saw a small child playing in the garden.

"Is that your daughter?" he asked Mrs. Carnegie, insisting that the little girl be brought in, as he wished to meet her. Margaret went up to the King and curtsied solemnly.

The Diplodocus

"Won't you kiss me?" the King asked, bending down. At once the 5-year-old threw her arms around the royal neck and bestowed a most hospitable greeting. In his subsequent tour of the castle the King came into the nursery, showing suitable deference to all the dolls and other childish wonders.

"What in the world, Carnegie, is this?" he said, pausing before it.

"That," replied Carnegie, "is a namesake of mine. It is the largest quadruped that ever walked the earth." And he told the story. One day he saw a picture in a New York Sunday newspaper portraying a dinosaur skeleton recently found in Wyoming; the journalistic artist had sketched the beast crawling up Broadway, his head reaching the top of a skyscraper, the street cars passing between his legs. Carnegie had sent this clipping to Dr. William J. Holland, director of the Carnegie Museum, with a laconic note: "Buy this for Pittsburgh. A. C." The quarry was finally run down, mounted and labeled "Diplodocus Carnegiei."

"We must have one of these in the British Museum," said the King.

Another original was not easily uncovered, but a reproduction in plaster was made in answer to the royal request, and is now in the reptile gallery of the London institution. Soon the German Emperor, the President of France, and the heads of other nations began clamoring for replicas, with the result that the Diplodocus Carnegiei can be found in most of the capitals of the world. King Edward's passing visit at least did something for popular education on scientific lines.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Interesting about local coin and the Canuck currency . . . If you take an American $20 bill to Canada, they give up $21.80 for it. But if you take a $20 gold piece there you receive only $20 in Canadian coinage . . . Because, it appears, Canada still is on the gold standard and gold is paid for at par with the Canadian $ . . . At least so a contributor states . . . Sorry for the people in Hollywood, who just had to take another 50 per center . . . Most of them had already been cut 40 per cent.

There probably is reason enough to believe "The Hollywood Reporter's" recent scoop—that Peggy Fears and her groom might split—but when the rumor made the rounds months ago—most of us ignored it on the ground that any wife who had an "angel" for a husband would positively be crazy even to consider a divorce . . . Wilkerson and Pope, the monitors of that informative mag, promote plenty of interesting news . . . That H. B. Warner's wife is going to China and Warner is Reno bound. That Lew Ayres and Alice White are chummy and that Garbo is due back this week, frinstance . . . Among my other pleasures this week was being appointed to the board of the Cameramen's Union for their Majestic Theater benefit Sunday eve . . . They've promoted every star in town, and it ought to be quite an event . . . I always liked the cameraman, anyway . . . His daily routine is similar to a reporter's, except that he must tote an 85 lb. camera wherever he goes . . . Instead of a pencil and a pad . . . And he must be on the job when news happens, not a few minutes afterward . . . The major life insurance companies won't insure him, and little wonder . . . When he is assigned to a perilous story, the equipment department instructs him to take along an old camera—so that the company won't lose anything of value in case of accident . . . In fewer words, a cameraman can be replaced without much bother . . . But cameras cost money!

The radio lads at KFOX, Long Beach, Cal., in the earthquake area, rate anybody's hand-clapping . . . During the hectic and dark hours of March 10 they dug themselves out of the ruins, and put their station on the air in a couple of hours' time, summoned doctors, the navy and other succor and generally heartened the distressed public . . . O-Kay! KFOX! . . . Wonder what's become of Barry, who got himself fired from the Senate for Winchelling in Al Smith's magazine? . . . Like to meet him and find out if the gents he had in mind are the same a li'l birdie told me they are . . . Too good a story to get rusty.

Groucho Marx apparently was shocked in the earthquake area. He telegraphs: "Dear Walter—you can have your quake and eat it!" . . . My bride, who has plenty of heart, and doesn't easily get worried, finally let it get on her tattered nerves . . . She said via the phone (after a five-hour delay) that it is a horrible experience. That you are afraid to escape anywhere—for fear that wherever you go, the earth will suddenly open up and devour you . . . And that it was one thing you couldn't make up an answer to—when the baby's face blanched and she wanted to know "what is go-ning on around here?" . . . Pretty horrible publicity for the grandest part of the country I know . . . And the Southern Californians no longer will be able to point at San Francisco and discuss S. F.'s catastrophe . . . But the Los Angeles area, Santa Barbara, Long Beach and the rest can't have everything . . . They are blessed with sunshine, palm trees, pretty women, fruitful lands and other samples of heaven . . . And when I get fired from my job some day—that's where I intend to dwell—in Southern California . . . And if the earth out there starts acting emotional when I'm there—then let it . . . As June put it, when I asked what sort of a feeling it was: . . . "It's a terrifying thing," she replied, "like the world coming to an end—the way it did at Christmas."

The Morning Musicale at Hotel Schenley yesterday presented Viola Byrgerson, contralto, and William Stone, violinist. The program again was exceptional and compact with several songs and shorter violin compositions of both merit and freshness.

Mr. Lissfelt

William Stone is the winner of first place from among high school students during last year's contest. As far as he has gone there is evidence of fine talent, and, for his age, an unusual amount of poise with masterpieces. Technically he plays a pure tone, has a good cantilena, and rhythmically is sure and forceful.

Viola Byrgerson learns her songs well, and her voice is a beautiful organ. Like too many contraltos she wants to make the voice darker than it needs be, and consequently her Wolff lieder and the songs of Granville Bantock gave no evidence of the brightness and humor that she was able later to show in the group of four Chinese Nursery Rhymes of Bainbridge-Crist which she gave as most fitting encores.

Marian Bollinger played most accomplished accompaniments for Mrs. Byrgerson, and Earl Wild was a good second for the violinist.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Mr. Laughton Again Cast As Roman

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 17. A pouting Nero in "The Sign of the Cross," Charles Laughton will don the toga again when he returns to Hollywood to make his next picture in May.

So much was decided when Paramount agreed to loan the English actor to the Halperin Brothers for the lead in their new film, "The Man Who Couldn't Die."

As the hero of this Garnett Weston screen original, Laughton will make his first appearance as a Roman centurion and will wander through the next 2,000 years of history. The story is melodrama even more weird than "Supernatural," with which the producing firm makes its bow under Paramount release.

Mr. Laughton

Success of the mystery and horror films, a type of entertainment for which the screen is a perfect medium, is exerting influence upon every studio program in Hollywood. This is going to be a great year for goose pimples.

Some people are too lucky. The other day Carole Lombard lost the 80-carat star sapphire ring which Bill Powell gave her for Christmas. The next day it was returned to her by the publisher of a film trade paper. He had found it in the gutter outside the Paramount studio.

Miss Lombard

Here's an odd aftermath of the earthquake. Several weeks ago, Walter Futter released one of those film curiosity reels showing, among other things, a tropical plant, the abus, which is said to shrivel up two hours before an earth disturbance. Since Friday's shock, the producer has received 50 letters, asking where to get seeds for the plant.

Among the late spots, the Cocoanut Grove reports that business picked up over Friday and Saturday night. Nervous residents of the district sat up in the lobby of the Ambassador for a number of hours. They were given a concert by Cugat's Tango band . . . The Dick Arlens have moved into the Ambassador for the time being . . . A morose fellow at times, Samuel Hoffenstein, the author, recently organized a party to visit a morgue. Ann Harding started but got cold feet and took a taxi home.

Saw Sally Eilers, Carmen Pantages Considine and Dixie Martin lunching at Hollywood's new modernistic restaurant. Sally is living at her mother's since her separation from Hoot . . . Bessie Love and husband Bill Hawks, were at the same spot. Bill, who is Ronald Colman's business adviser, says that Ronnie will be leaving for Europe in a couple of weeks . . . Walter Byron is another who'll head for England . . . And Lilyan Tashman and Ed Lowe talk to me about an early European trip.

Miss Eilers

Because she was not able to come over here right away, most people have forgotten that Paramount signed Dorothea Wieck, the sympathetic school - mistress of "Maedchen in Uniform. The German actress will sail for America March 20.

Did you know: Now prepare for a shock—that Jean Harlow has double-jointed thumbs?

'Supernatural' Cast Completed

With the signing of Willard Robertson, the cast or Paramount's "Supernatural" was completed. He joins a list of players including Carole Lombard, Allan Dinehart, Vivienne Osborne, Randolph Scott, H. B. Warner, Beryl Mercer, William Farnum, George Burr MacAnnan and Lyman Williams.

Micheal and Peg

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Of Thee I Sing," musical comedy in the Nixon, where the engagement has been extended three days, to run through next Wednesday, with the usual matinee, is not the traditional musical comedy on which our forefathers were bred and which generations of librettists and composers used as a pattern. It has many of the familiar trappings, and the general design is kosher, but there is one thing missing. It has a chorus 'n' everything, and the piece is split up into scenes, so that they may cavort in different costumes, and there are 25 musical numbers, which, again, is according to Hoyle. But that dear child, Cinderella, who, for ages and ages, has kept the larders of the tunesmiths and bookwrights well supplied, is absent. For just as many ages there has been a demand for a musical comedy without a Cinderella, but she evaded the exorcists right up to "Of Thee I Sing." A tear for Cinderella, if you can spare it, please.

Katharine Cornell, whose second play of the season, "Alien Corn," is among the current hits in New York, has waged a stiff fight to keep that second "a" in her name, which was the one selected by her mother. The proneness of compositors to us "e" instead of "a" in the second syllable, caused Clemence Dane to have some angry moments. She had dedicated her play about the Bronte sisters, "Wild Decembers," to Miss Cornell, and the dedicatory notice had the name spelled with an "e." This Miss Dane crossed out with a pen and substituted the correct letter in the copies of her drama that she presented to Miss Cornell.

Leo Carillo, recently here with the "42nd Street" special, will open a series of vaudeville dates in New Orleans today . . . There is talk that the Four Marx Brothers may become film producers on their own . . . Billie Dove has returned to Hollywood after a vacation in the East . . . Possibility of a film shortage during the summer has roused hope in the heart of many a vaudevillian . . . It is reported that Gloria Swanson, whose last picture was made abroad, will make her next in Hollywood . . . Katherine Hepburn, now in New York, expects to go back to Hollywood ere the end of the month . . . A theater of 118 seats, featuring short films, will be opened in a Cincinnati railroad station about April 1 . . . Clark Gable and Jean Harlow will be teamed again in "Nora," story by John Emerson and Anita Loos.

Fulton Film Drama on Liner

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Luxury Liner," picture of average entertainment value in the Fulton, obviously is an attempt to be the "Grand Hotel" of the high seas, but it misses broadly in all except the factor of being a panorama of the round of life, from the cradle to the grave, in a spot where the cycle can be observed. There is birth, there is death, there is comedy, there is tragedy, there is hope, there is despair, there is romance shattered and love reborn, and there is poverty and riches side by side—all the elements for a grand picture, and just missing through the lack of some sublime touch. Nevertheless, it does have its moments, this jig-saw puzzle of life.

Possibly the trouble is that it attempts too much, with about four romances, several of which become intermixed in triangles and double and triple triangles, all interrupted from time to time to make the audience acquainted with what goes on aboard a great ocean steamship, with its strange population. One travels vicariously, first, second or third class, and becomes party to all matters catalogued in the opening paragraph.

The picture has a fine cast, with George Brent becoming a ship's doctor in order to catch up with his wife, who is eloping with Frank Morgan, financier, who shelves her for another woman he meets on the ship. Zita Johann, nurse on the vessel, helps the doctor to forget the wound caused by his wife, played by Vivienne Osborne. Alice White, flapper in the third class, who gets to the first class quarters, through gold-digging, and is glad to get back, supplies the comedy.

New Screen Bills

Constance Bennett has the leading role in "Our Betters," photoplay opening in the Stanley today. Miss Bennett marries for a title, but finds out that he only married her for money.

"Men Must Fight" is a story of war on the Penn screen. Phillips Holmes, Diana Wynyard and Lewis Stone have the leading roles. Holmes is a young man who, in spite of his mother's hatred for war, goes when his country calls.

The Warner screen today has "King of the Jungle," with Buster Crabbe playing the part of a lion man. Frances Dee has the leading feminine role.

Will Rogers and Janet Gaynor have leading roles in "State Fair" opening tomorrow in the Sheridan Square. The cast also includes Lewis Ayres.

The Vilna Troupe and the Yiddish Art Players appear in the Jewish talking picture, "A Daughter of Her People," coming to the Avenue Cinema screen Monday.

Evalyn Knapp and Walter Byron have the leading roles in "Slightly Married," opening in the Variety Sunday with a midnight show.

* * *

Remains

Lois Moran, Pittsburgh actress, will stay in her home town three additional days in "Of Thee I Sing," the engagement in the Nixon having been extended to include next Wednesday.

Salary Topic As Earth Shakes

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, March 17.—(AP.)—It begins to look as though there were another side to that display of self-sacrifice that a "United Hollywood" was putting on several days ago when the financial crisis threatened the studios.

Those studio mass meetings were deceptive. Mass action, mass loyalty concealed individual disagreements. These came to light as various groups—branches of the academy—held conclaves.

The office workers, the stenographers, the publicity staffs, didn't hold meetings. They accepted meekly the proposed 50 per cent salary cut, hoping they'd keep their little jobs.

But the writers, the directors, the actors, the technicians, the producers—these held meetings. There were words exchanged, many words.

The actors' branch met the night of the recent earthquake. A radio outside the meeting hall was detailing stories of death and damage. Many listened before filing into the hall.

The meeting was scarcely opened before another tremor came. As one the crowd, including many stars, rose to its feet, then settled back, laughing.

There were two or three more tremors, decided quakes, during the nearly four hours of talk that followed. Nature's phenomena passed scarcely noticed. Hollywood actors were discussing salary!

BEATING CHAPMAN TASK FOR RIVALS

THE PROMISED REVIVAL of base stealing in the major leagues this year means an interesting race for individual honors, and the man whom the other candidates will have to beat out is Ben Chapman, of the Yankees. Chapman dropped to 38 steals last season, as compared with 61 in 1931, though at that he led both leagues. He says he slowed down because some of his mates had warned him so much running would take two years off his career, but after pondering on the baseball longevity of such famous old bag bandits as Honus Wagner, Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins and Tris Speaker he has come to the conclusion that his advisers were all wrong.

Ben Chapman

So the Yankee speed merchant is preparing to cut loose again. Chapman admits that stealing in the American League is made easier by the fact that many of the pitchers do not watch the bases closely. He names the Mackian staff, in particular, saying a fellow could run around the park while Earnshaw, Grove and Walberg are rearing to throw the ball. Chapman picks Rick Ferrell as the best throwing catcher, and Cronin, Melillo and Bishop as the infielders most adept at tagging runners.

THE RATE AT which Babe Herman has been knocking the ball out of the lot at Los Angeles and Catalina Island leads the other Cubs to predict that Chicago fans will have a new home run idol.

Herman's long-distance hitting has been due in part to the use of a much heavier bat than he swung in former years. But he doesn't mean to stick to it. He says he adopted the added weight only for practice purposes, so that he will be able to swing his lighter club to better advantage when the season opens.

ONE NEWCOMER WHO practically has clinched a berth with the Giants, according to training camp reports, is Outfielder Homer Peel, formerly with the Cardinals and Phillies, and drafted by New York from the Card farm at Columbus.

Peel has background, experience, poise and ability, and has been a standout in practice games. The Cards tried to get him back for Columbus, but Billy Terry wouldn't listen. Peel is ranked at least equal to Leonard Koenecke and has an edge on Hank Lieber.

OLD JACK QUINN this spring starts his thirty-first year in baseball, and if condition counts for anything he bids fair to go right on laughing at Father Time through another season, as there isn't a player on the Dodger roster in better spring shape. The Methusaleh of moundsmen has a training system all his own. He starts throwing a ball on his first day in camp, tossing it 35 feet at first and working up gradually to the full pitching distance; he gets control by keeping his eye on the plate all through his windup, and he conditions his legs by having some of the rookies lay down bunts to him at all angles.

Jack Quinn

THE FACT THAT Quinn still is pitching in the majors, when 48 or older, answers the question as to whether it's a good system. Of course, he's no longer a starter, but he worked in 42 games as a relief hurler last year, indicating that he's still pretty useful.

Pitching guile, experience, a puzzling spitball and good control have kept Quinn going since the rubber went out of his arm. "The important factors in relief hurling are condition, control and experience," the veteran explains. "One false pitch may mean the ball game. It requires hard, earnest work and a thorough knowledge of the batsmen to be successful."

THE GIANTS HAVE discarded those red, white and blue striped-candy stockings that long displeased your eyes. Hereafter they'll wear black stockings with three pin stripes of orange, and there will be orange piping on the gray traveling uniforms.

Instead of the word "Giants" the front of the blouse will bear only the letters "N. Y." Under the blouse each player will wear a black shirt, sort of a Fascisti touch, but harmonizing with the orange motif of the decorations.

AMONG THE PARTICIPANTS in sports at the University of Pittsburgh, members of the rifle team had the highest academic average for the past semester. The marksmen turned in an average of 1.52 quality points, which is close to a B average. Next in line was the swimming squad, with 1.35. The group average for all competing in sports, freshmen included, was 1.12. The average of the student body as a whole was around 1. The university requirement for graduation is a quality point average of .75. The grades given do not include those of students enrolled in the professional schools. Following rifle and swimming were track, 1.31; boxing, 1.12; cross-country, 1.08; basketball, 1.01; football, .89.

HEADING THE INDIVIDUAL honor roll among the Panther athletes, freshmen not included, is William Albright, sophomore in the school of engineering and a member of the track and cross-country squads. He had an average of 2.83. Right behind him are Riflemen Allan Currie and Kenneth McFarlane, with 2.68 and 2.57.

In order follow Joseph Schmeiler and Irving Robbins, swimming, 2.50; James Watkins, track and cross-country, 2; Arvil Fleming, track, 1.91; William Ames and Homer Wadsworth, basketball, 1.87; Herbert Pearle and Charles Junge, boxing, 1.80 and 1.64; Paul Stinner, swimming, 1.62; James Giannatti, boxing, 1.60; George Kerr, track, 1.50; Harvey Rooker, football, and John Carik, swimming, 1.46.

WHILE THE FIRST boxing anniversary of the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference is being observed with a tournament in Morgantown, W. Va., tonight and tomorrow night, with local colleges competing, the glove sport in the Eastern Intercollegiate Association will round out a decade of championship tournaments at State College, where the first tourney was held in 1924, as well as those of 1929 and 1931.

Members entered are Penn State, Syracuse, present team champion; Army, Western Maryland and M. I. T. Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth are competing by invitation. Al Grayber and Red Robinson, Pittsburgh officials, will work the Penn State tourney, with Bryan Hayes, of Philadelphia, as third man. The three will take turns at refereeing and judging. Following this afternoon's preliminaries, the semi-finals will be run off tonight, with 16 bouts on the program. Tomorrow night will see a like number of bouts in the finals for first and third places.

Ben Jeby

ANOTHER RING CHAMPION will defend his title tonight, when Ben Jeby, recognized by the Empire State commission as the holder of the world middleweight title, stakes his crown on the outcome of a 15-round bout with Vince Dundee in New York. If only past performances were considered, Jeby would appear to be in danger of being separated from his laurels, as in two previous 10-round meetings of the same fighters Dundee won the decision on each occasion, the first in 1930 and the other in 1931. But conditions have changed since the pair tangled last. Jeby is a much improved battler and came steadily up the ladder until he won the New York version of the championship by stopping such a dangerous customer as Frankie Battaglia in January. On the other hand, Dundee has slipped, and on general form Jeby looks like the probable winner.

The final hand of the 1932-33 Pittsburgh district collegiate basketball campaign will be dealt tonight in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion, with Pitt's Golden Panthers seeking to fill a 17-victory straight at the expense of Carnegie Tech's Tartan passers.

In this, the second game of the season between the two city rivals, the Panthers will be out to make it 17 in a row over the Skibos, who haven't called a Pitt basketball hand since back in 1927. That is six years, which is a long time, even if you are not in jail.

SIX STARS THROUGH

Besides, six members of the rival casts will be dealt out of varsity competition after tonight's fracas, it being the wind-up struggle for Capt. Don Smith and Rocco Cutri, of Pitt, and Co-captains William Fergus and Bob Smith, Eddie Stentz and Jerry Seigal, of Tech.

The Tartans came plenty close to knocking off the Pitts in the first game this year, bowing 30 to 26. Since that time, Pitt has lost three important cogs, one starting performer, Claire Cribbs, and two ace reservists, Slim Wainio and Whitey Wilson. Wilson and Wainio were invaluable in bringing Pitt its victory in that first tussle, and even their heroic efforts might have gone for naught had it not been that the Skibos simply could not hit the hoop that evening.

A victory for Pitt tonight will give the Panthers their seventeenth victory out of 22 starts for the season. A triumph for Tech will make it 9 out of 19, placing Max Hannum's charges just a fraction below the .500 rating mark.

OCHSENHIRT AT CENTER

Russ Ochsenhirt will start at center for Pitt tonight, a position he has been filling very, very capably since replacing the ineligible Claire Cribbs. Capt. Don Smith, dubbed the greatest Pitt player since the days of Charley Hyatt, and Skippy Hughes, most promising of the Pitt sophomores, will go at the forwards and Charley Hughes and Don McCamant will handle the guard assignments. The first Pitt substitute figures to be Rocco Cutri.

Tech's lineup will be identical with that which started against West Virginia Tuesday, save that Ted Rigg is to be in at one of the guards in the place of Silverman. Bob Smith and Lou Jagnow are the forward selections, with Eddie Stentz set for the center job and Red Fergus holding down the other guard.

If they can beat the Tech Plebes again, Pitt's crack freshman five will mark up its eighteenth consecutive victory of the season and place another perfect record to Pitt's credit. The preliminary is scheduled to get under way at 7 o'clock, with the varsity encounter slated for one hour later.

BOXERS AT W. VA.

The Pitt, Duquesne and Tech boxing squads are slated to leave the city this morning and head for Morgantown, where tonight and tomorrow they'll battle in the second annual Intercollegiate Conference individual championship tournament in the West Virginia University field house ring.

Tech will be represented in the tourney by Henry Carr and Ralph Atlas; Pitt by Jack Shricker, Charley Junge, Jimmy Giannati and Ed Gongloff and the Dukes by Freddie Moore, Carl Avington, Cyril Brain and Bob Gibb.

Frank La Chance, a graduate of Peabody High, has been elected captain of the Carnegie Tech swimming team.

Kerr to Tutor At Summer School

LUBBOCK, Tex., March 17.—(AP.)—Andy Kerr, head football coach at Colgate University, will teach in the third annual Texas Tech College coaching school here July 31 through August 12.

The Chow Leaguer

He may be slow upon his feet,
And awkward as a cow;
But bet your dimes he'll be in line,
When they ring the bell for chow.

He couldn't run from first to third
In half an hour from now;
But he'll be there a'waitin'
When they ring the bell for chow.

He's never known to steal a base,
No need to show him how;
But he'll be first to head the race,
When they ring the bell for chow.

He couldn't get a signal
Through his hardened ivory brow;
But he'll never miss the music,
When they ring the bell for chow.

He's out of place in ball parks,
He belongs behind the plow;
But, kid, he's sure a wonder
When they ring the bell for chow.

He don't know how to handle
A bat or ball, I'll vow;
But watch him with a knife and fork,
When they ring the bell for chow.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE OLDEST CIVIL WAR TWINS—"Uncle Jerry" and "Uncle Zach," as they are familiary known, enlisted twice during the Civil War and served side by side for 21 months. They first enlisted at the age of 17 in the Twentieth Pennsylvania Cavalry, in 1862, and served six months with the cavalry before they were mustered out. They then re-enlisted in the Two Hundred and Thirtieth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served until the close of the war, taking part in severe fighting at Fort Fisher, Petersburg, Gettysburg and other engagements. The Hess twins are the oldest Civil War veteran twins on record, having celebrated their 88th birthday on the day my cartoon was published—March 16. At present, they are living near Dixon, Ill. THE FOUNTAIN OF LOVE—The Fountain of Love is situated within the Garden of Tears in Coimbra, Portugal, the scene of the most famous tragedy in that country's history. Here Ignes de Castro, the love of the Crown Prince Pedro, was foully assassinated by the emissaries of the King Don Alfonso IV, in 1355. The spot is immortalized in Camoens' celebrated passage,

Tears are its waters and its name is love."

SCHOOL RIFLE MARKS HIGH

By LIEUT. COL. JESS KRUEGER
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, March 17.—Unusually good marks are being recorded by cadet teams competing in the 1933 Hearst rifle trophy championship throughout the nation.

More than 500 teams from universities, colleges, military academies and high schools are in the midst of firing and hopeful of winning what is generally accepted as the marksmanship championship among the country's reserve office training corps units.

Among the institutions which have already completed the firing and submitted their official targets to Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, of the 6th Corps area, referee of the matches, are the University of Oregon; Roosevelt High School, Los Angeles; State College of Washington; Northwestern Military and Naval Academy; Massachusetts State College; Xavier High School, New York; LaSalle Military Academy, Long Island; Boys' High School and Technological High School, Georgia; Rose Polytechnic Institute, Indiana, and Ouachita College, Arkansas.

It is expected that all marks will be recorded within the next few weeks and the championships determined before May 1.

Mid-Atlantic Confab Postponed One Week

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 17.—(AP.)—Elmer Dailey, president of the Middle Atlantic Baseball League, has announced that the meeting announced for Sunday at Zanesville, O., has been postponed for one week.

Dailey explained that the gathering, at which plans for the coming season will be discussed, will be held the following Sunday, March 26, at Zanesville.

PILOTS AFTER STAR TALENT

By TOM BIRKS

With the City Baseball League set to go as an eight-club circuit, plenty of energy is being expended these days by the managers trying to get the available talent in the district lined up.

With the passing of the North Side Civics from the City League, Art Rooney has transferred his affections to the Ottie Cochran club. He will play centerfield for the new team.

For many years, Rooney has been the mainstay behind the Civics and last season it became evident that it was the last year for the popular Salt Works crowd. The Civics will be missed in the City League. The Manchester district has produced so many fighting organizations, and fans will remember the clashes between Bellevue and the North Siders, when it often became necessary to call out the police.

Jimmy, Dan and Art Rooney, Harp Vaughan, Jimmy and Johnny Mitchell, Jimmy Black and others too numerous to mention were star performers with the Civics.

Harry Fowler, who in the heydey of the Civics did his stuff with Harry Yerx at Bellevue, will have charge of the Cochrans on the field. His knowledge of City League matters and players should help the Pleasant Valley crowd a lot.

The Dormont City Leaguers will hold a dance and show at Eddie Peyton's on Monday night. This is the annual pre-season affair for the club.

On Wednesday evening the Mellon-Stuart baseball club will hold a card party and dance at Motor Square Garden.

The Allegheny Valley League was organized at Tarentum last night with New Kensington, Springdale, New Kensington Negro Elks, Curtisville, Cheswick, Natrona, East Deer and Lou's Club in the fold.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—Charley Grimm and his Cub champions landed in San Francisco this morning, glad they could celebrate St. Patrick's Day hundreds of miles from the Los Angeles earthquake zone. The Bruins came bearing tales of fear over the earth's rumblings. But, if George Gibson and his Buccos have their way, the Bears will think a few more buildings are falling over in the vicinity of the Seals' Stadium this afternoon, for the Pirates are anxious to slap down the Cubs in the four-game series starting today.

Gibby has Larry French and Bill Harris already to heckle the National League champions. Skipper Charley may counter with Leroy Hermann and Carroll Yerkes, the latter a lefthander.

FAIR WEATHER PROMISED

The weather prophets of the San Francisco area predict fair weather for the opener of the big series. In the event of the return of the sunshine, St. Patrick's Day will be a happy occasion for the Pirates, who have seen little else than rain since they landed in this Golden Gate sector about one week ago.

The Bears will be met tomorrow afternoon at the same park, and on Sunday morning the scene will switch to the Oakland park across the bay. The major leaguers will disport themselves for the edification of the folks of Remy Kremer's home town, after which all hands will hurry back on the ferries to the San Francisco side, where the finale will be given.

The Buccos were not altogether inactive yesterday. The Pirate-Portland game slated for San Jose was called off on account of rain, but Gibby's sharpshooters and catchers enjoyed an hour's drill at the home of the Seals. The field was too muddy to permit any hitting or fielding, so the other players did not don their uniforms.

GAME RE-SCHEDULED

President William E. Benswanger this morning announced that the game with Portland at San Jose had been re-scheduled. It was the plan of the Buccos to go to Santa Cruz on Monday. That date was open and the team would have worked out on the date previous to playing a Tuesday game with the Seattle Indians. Under a new arrangement the Pirates will play Portland Monday at San Jose. The Seattle game at Santa Cruz also will be staged. The latter town is about 100 miles south of San Francisco.

Chillysauce

Ben Sankey, clean-cut Dixie kid who sparkled at short for the Pirates, but failed to hit consistently, may be on his way to the big show again, according to Spencer Abbott, manager of the Portland Beavers.

Abbott praised Sankey to this writer in a talk at the local ball park yesterday. Ben was a member of the Beavers the last two months of their pennant drive. He has perked up in his batting and his fielding is exceptional.

The Portland pilot also had kind words for Lon Kinney, brother of the Pirate catcher, who was graduated to the majors

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

BILOXI, Miss., March 17.—You can't blame the rookies on our Washington Club for being nervous, because the day they arrive in Biloxi they find the principal industry here is canning. The boys can't walk a block without hearing the rattle of tinware, and it sort of gives 'em the jitters. Griff will open his personal canning season any day now. A lot of boys trying for our team have as much chance of finally getting to Washington as the Socialists' candidate for President.

Nick Altrock

In a few days, Griff will can some of them, and some others he will pack in mason jars and ship to the minor leagues. We got a couple of rookies on our roster that will have to play about 2,000,000 gallons of tank twons before they're ripe for the big league.

TWO COLLEGE BOXING TOURNEYS GET UNDER WAY TODAY

LOCAL RINGMEN IN ACTION AT WEST VA.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 17.—(AP.)—Fistic luminaries of seven universities and colleges will square off tonight in the second annual Intercollegiate Conference individual championship tourney.

The bouts will get under way at 7:30 p. m., three hours after the drawings are held.

Only the individual championships in the seven weight divisions will be decided, West Virginia already having won the team title.

Boxers from Pitt, Carnegie Tech, West Virginia, Bucknell, Temple, Washington and Jefferson and Duquesne will compete.

The referee will be John Gallagher, of Wheeling, and judges will be John T. Taylor and Chester Phillips, both of Pittsburgh.

Four 1932 champions are on hand for this year's event. Jack Shricker, of Pitt, will seek to retain his 155-pound class crown; Pete D'Allesandro, of Temple, is out to win the 115-pound division honor again; Freddie Moore, of Duquesne, hopes to retain possession of the 135-pound class laurel, and Al Demedowitz, of Wash-Jeff, will seek to keep hold of the 175-pound crown.

SYRACUSE FAVORED

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 17.—(AP.)—The Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association championships drew 38 mitmen from seven colleges and universities to Pennsylvania State College's gymnasium today.

Preliminaries were to be fought this afternoon, semi-finals tonight, and finals and third-place bouts tomorrow night.

Syracuse, undefeated in dual meets, was favored to retain the team title with principal opposition from Army, another unbeaten array. Syracuse and Army each has entered a full eight-man team, with seven from Penn State, another team title contender; five from Western Maryland, five from Massachusetts Tech, three from Yale, and two from Dartmouth.

The defending individual champions included Al Wertheimer, Syracuse, 125 pounds; John McAndrews, Penn State, 135 pounds; Joe Moran, Syracuse, 155 pounds, and Joe Remus, Army, heavyweight. Remus won the 175-pound title last year when the heavyweight class was temporarily abandoned.

LEHIGH DEFENDS TITLE

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP.)—Lehigh University ruled a strong favorite to retain the team title as 64 grapplers from eight colleges and universities prepared for the opening tests of the eastern intercollegiate wrestling championships today.

Lehigh enters the tournament undefeated in dual meet competition this season, but the Pennsylvanians may have to overcome serious challenges from Columbia and Penn State, also undefeated. Cornell, Yale, Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Princeton complete the field.

Preliminary and semi-final bouts were to be disposed of this afternoon and tonight. The finals and consolation bouts, which count in the team competition, will be held tomorrow afternoon.

HARVARD EVENT CARRIES TITLE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The Harvard Cup tennis event will carry championship significance in 1933, according to Tournament Chairman Wells Fay, of the Harvard Club of Western Pennsylvania. The new tourney will be known as the interscholastic championship of Allegheny County for the Harvard Cup.

The Harvard affair, which will be staged this year for the eleventh time, has never heretofore been dignified with official titular distinction, though unofficially its winner has always been regarded as the premier high school racqueter of the district.

Ouimet's GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET

Former National Amateur and Open Golf Champion.

Francis Ouimet

Spring is not far off, and for many humans that means a chance once again to swing a niblick and escape from the bunkers of winter inactivity. Oftentimes after a long layoff the clubs that felt so heavy after a season's carrying about seem as light as a feather. As a result, the first shots hit are going to carry the added burden of a fast backswing. Naturally, after one has played away those first exuberant days, the old natural swing, with its slow back, is likely to return. Yet, if allowed to go unhindered and untreated, the ailment readily can become chronic to such an extent that one wonders where his game has disappeared.

START SLOWLY

Apparently it does not take long for a golfing fault to become a habit. Indeed, it is too bad that right fundamentals do not become a habit as quickly. But, as the reverse is true, as a multitude of golfers will vouch, it is well to pay particular attention to one's early-season play. No doubt the muscles are not quite as supple as they were in midseason form last year and the swing for several reasons not nearly as smooth.

It might be well for that reason to start the game a bit slowly, to take time on the backswing and avoid attempting to kill the ball. For instance, the wrists may not be quite as flexible at the outset as one is accustomed to have them and the backswing not quite as full. Rushing matters and forcing the club back at this early stage is more than likely to tighten not only the muscles here but in the hips and waist. Let the golfer proceed slowly, starting with a comfortable backswing, and gradually loosening up the less flexible muscles in this fashion. It will not be long before the feel of relaxed well being again is prevalent and one can hit the ball with all the zest of old.

In fact, this same careful procedure might be followed every time one plays. Bobby Jones follows a somewhat similar course. On the first hole, he makes no attempt to take a full pivot, remaining content to restrict this desire and adapt, instead, a less than full backswing which at the same time is comfortable and relaxed. On the second hole he allows a bit more leeway and adds to this until approximately the sixth hole, at which time he is ready to unleash the full power of his stroke should the occasion demand. This gradual warming up not only keeps the muscles supple, but prevents mistakes which might creep into the swing were one thinking too much of distance.

HOW TO AVOID SHOCK

Then again, there often is a decided shock at impact during the first few days, especially on long iron shots where the clubhead digs into the ground on its divot-taking ways. This constant pounding not only tires the wrists and arms, but often forms blisters on the hands, for there always is the tendency to grip the club firmly on such shots. The fingers being rather weak from a winter's layoff, the grip often is relegated to the palms, and the skin there, being as yet uncalloused, suffers in consequence. As a result, the player flinches from such shots and this habit may continue on into the summer even after all soreness has disappeared. Far better to pursue one's course slowly and surely if one is to enjoy the game.

Maureen Orcutt Faces Mrs. Hill

AUGUSTA, March 17.—(AP.)—Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., sought victory in the Augusta women's invitation golf championship here today for a double purpose—to square with Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, for a defeat here a year ago and also for a setback earlier this season in Florida.

Miss Orcutt, who won the qualifying round medal and whose play has been brilliant all week, won her way into the championship with a 3 and 2 triumph over Miss Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, S. C., yesterday as Mrs. Hill was beating Miss Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo, N. Y., by a similar count.

Another all-star card of three 10-round bouts and a six-rounder make up the weekly boxing show at the Arena, on the North Side, tonight.

REDHEADS IN OPENER

Cox recently fought a tough battle with Joe Marcus in Detroit, and has been in with some of the best men in the country. Holt has shown to good advantage against Manuel Quintero and Morrie Sherman in recent battles. He upset the dope by beating Quintero in Motor Square Garden, but dropped a return bout with him in the Moose Temple. He defeated Sherman at the Arena.

Mitchell takes the place of Archie Bell, of New York, who is ill, against Wilson. He has boxed George Riley, Paul Dazzo, Jimmy Vaughn, Jackie Britton, Tony Leto and Petey Sarron, among others. The show gets under way at 8:30.

Between Rounds

A bout that will be watched with considerable interest by the local fans tonight is that between Joe Marcus, Braddock lightweight, and Frankie Bojarski, the southpaw, in Erie. Marcus recently won by a (technical) knockout over another Erie boxer, Maxie Strub, at Motor Square Garden, the first time Strub has been stopped in a bout, and, on the strength of this feat, he landed the Bojarski battle.

Vince Dundee, brother of Joe Dundee, the former welterweight champion, has a good chance of bringing a second world title to his family when he meets Ben Jeby for the middleweight crown in a 15-round bout in New York's Madison Square Garden tonight. Jeby won the title in an elimination tournament, stopping Frankie Battaglia in the final bout in January. Dundee has beaten him in two previous meetings, but Jeby has been installed an 8-5 favorite tonight.

The eyes of the followers of college boxing are focused on State College, Pa., and Morgantown, W. Va., where, respectively, today and tomorrow, the Intercollegiate and the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference championships will be decided. Pitt, Carnegie Tech, Duquesne University, Temple, Bucknell and W. & J. are the contenders in the Morgantown tournament, and Penn State, Dartmouth, Yale, Syracuse, Western Maryland, Army and Massachusetts Tech will compete at State College. Syracuse will defend the team championship which it won last yaer.

Bobby Ray, of the Hill, will box Eddie Koppy, of Detroit, in the eight-round semi-final to Battling Gizzy's bout with Roger Bernard at Flint, Mich., next Monday night.

Jimmy Thomas will box Pete De Grasse in Montreal next Monday night, following his battle with Tommy Paul here last Monday, and his being cared for by the Arena in Philadelphia for a return bout one week from Monday with Jimmy Mack, whom he recently defeated here.

The card for the Tony Herrera-Eddie (Kid) Wolfe show at Motor Square Garden Monday night, is complete with the exception of an opponent for Pete Guliotta of New York, in the eight-round semi-final. George Bordell of New Kensington, meets Elmer Wilson, of the Hill, in the six-round second bout; Nat Litfin and Charley Burns are in the first six-rounder, and Mike Barto meets Charley Blozevich in the four-round opener.

GRIMM WARNS YOUNG HURLERS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—(AP.)—Manager Charley Grimm today started out to settle the cases of seven pitchers who hope to remain with the Chicago Cubs this year.

Anything but satisfied with Bud Tinning, Beryl Richmond, Carroll Yerkes, LeRoy Herrmann, Lynn Nelson and Lyle Newson, the Cub pilot said they would have to deliver in a hurry or be sent elsewhere. He was not quite so harsh with Roy Henshaw, former University of Chicago southpaw, but believes he needs more experience and more weight on his frame.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP.)—Bunching four of their 10 hits with a base on balls and some loose fielding by Hunt, the New York Yankees scored four runs in the sixth inning yesterday and took their second straight exhibition game from the Boston Braves, 5 to 2. Only 800 fans were on hand.

SWANSON STAR WITH CHISOX

PASADENA, Cal., March 17.—(AP.)—It looks as though this will be the big year for Evar Swanson, aspirant for a regular outfield job with the Chicago White Sox.

Swanson, who led the American Association in batting last season until the Sox bought him from Columbus, has been up before, notably with the Cincinnati Reds. He couldn't quite make it, in spite of being about as fast as anyone in baseball. This season he has advanced so rapidly that he appears certain of getting the call for right field over Elias Funk and Red Kress.

A. L. Briefs

NEW ORLEANS—(AP.)—The Cleveland Indians loosed a fourth-inning barrage of eight runs to defeat the New Orleans Pelicans in an exhibition game yesterday, 10 to 3. Manager Roger Peckinpaugh used two teams in the course of the game.

But with a crop of promising youngsters, those close to the Tiger boss believe he may ponder another week before announcing his initial reduction.

LOS ANGELES — (AP.) — Chicago's American League entry squared the city series with the Cubs, National League champions, with a 9-to-6 victory in their second exhibition game yesterday. The remainder of the series will be played in Chicago before the season opens. Lou Fonseca, first baseman-manager of the Sox, hit a home run in the seventh to break a 4-to-4 tie, and the inspired Sox went ahead to victory from there.

store at Philadelphia by Portland. Abbott thinks Lon will win a berth in Connie Mack's outfield.

Floyd Young is the only Pirate casualty. Some alarm was felt for the Tulsa star yesterday when a slight operation was necessary on one of his hands. The youngster developed an infection from the rubbing of a bat across the palm. He was in such pain that a surgeon was sought. The painful wound will be dressed today.

The Cubs were glad to come to San Francisco. The earthquakes of Los Angeles had many of the athletes in a fearful state. Many of the Bears became so frightened they left their hotel and went miles to their locker rooms at Wrigley Field to spend the first bad night.

On their way to San Jose yesterday, Bill Benswanger and Lawrence Coller stopped off at Stanford University, and there encountered Pop Warner. They had a nice visit with the erstwhile Panther mentor, who soon will leave to take up his duties at Temple.

Lang Denies Petrolia Will Succeed Graham

Denial was made today by Edward G. Lang, director of the Department of Public Works, of a report that Andy Petrolia, caddie master at the Schenley Park public golf course, is slated to succeed Bob Graham, professional there for the last two years.

No consideration has been given of any such change, the director said. Petrolia also denied knowledge of the reported switch.

Al McBride has been renamed as the professional at South Park, while the County Commissioners are to name a successor to Jimmy McFarland at North Park.

SCHOOL FLOOR SERIES WELL HANDLED

By JULIUS LEVIN

One of the outstanding features of the annual W. P. I. A. L. basketball tournament, which will come to a close in the Pitt Stadium pavilion Saturday evening when Duquesne High, champion of Section VII, meets New Castle High, champion of Section III, in the final battle, has been the efficient manner in which all contests were conducted by the members of the Western Pennsylvania Basketball Officials' Association.

Leo Mackey

While there was some dissatisfaction voiced by district college authorities over the way games were handled during the past season by local referees, such was not the case among the schoolboy athletes. It is human to err and the officials are no exception to the general rule, but an accurate checkup will reveal that the teams and coaches make far more mistakes than the average official.

CAPABLE OFFICIALS

The number of officials agreed upon by the coaches themselves only serves to bear out the contention that Western Pennsylvania referees compare favorably with the best in the country when it comes to conducting a basketball game in an efficient manner.

Each school entered in the W. P. I. A. L. eliminations was asked to submit a list of 10 officials acceptable to them for tournament games and out of these lists no less than 15 men received assignments in the eliminations.

That the majority of the members in the W. P. B. O. A. are considered capable officials by the schools sponsoring basketball teams is proved beyond question by the number of referees chosen for the eliminations. Calvin L. Bolster, recently chosen president; Al Slack, Dave Fawcett, Dan B. Dougherty, Yans Wallace, Graydon Campbell, Beggs Snyder, Walter Waite, Dan Brickley, Otto Herklotz, A. L. Walsh, W. S. Knight, Joe Gannon, Leo Mackey and Sykes Reed all received assignments in the 18 games.

TARGET FOR FANS

The average basketball official is a target for the fans the minute he steps on the floor. Basketball among the colleges and schools, unlike other sports, does not attract a transient patronage. Every fan that attends the games is biased in that he casts his support with one of the two contesting teams. If the official calls a foul on the opposition, he's an efficient man, but should he penalize his favorites, he immediately is labeled incompetent.

The growth of basketball in Western Pennsylvania is due in a large measure to the efficient work of the local referees' body.

New Castle High will have a chance to win its third major championship in a row tomorrow night when it engages Duquesne for the W. P. I. A. L. crown. New Castle already holds the W. P. I. A. L. track crown and a share in the three-way deadlock for the class AA football championship, the Bridenbaugh eleven being co-champions with Jeannette and McKeesport last fall.

This afternoon in the Fifth Avenue High School gym, the grade school basketball championship of the city will be decided when McNaugher, titleholder in Section I, engages Frick, champion of Section II. The winner will receive the Fintex trophy.

STOCKS MIRROR RETURN OF CAUTION

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP.) — Speculative enthusiasm appeared to have cooled in the securities markets today, as well as in some of the commodities, although considerable bullishness was still manifest in grains.

Stocks actually slid back 1 to 3 points in many instances in the early dealings, but after midday, much of the loss was regained, under leadership of the rails. Sugar stocks again turned strong. Securities generally showed little disposition to give up any important portion of their spectacular gains of Wednesday.

Wall street was enthusiastc over the indications of diversion of money and credit back into normal channels, as indicated by declining credit rates at New York, and a huge return of gold and currency to the Reserve banks, indicated in the weekly statements. Reassertion of strength on the part of the American dollar in the foreign exchange markets was another notable development. In this relation, significance was seen in the action of the Canadian government in valuing the American dollar at $1.18¾ in Canadian funds for customs duty purposes, after the two currencies had been considered at par during the banking holiday.

Wall street was definitely inclined to take a more cautious attitude toward stocks, until clearer indications were available as to how much business stimulation might be expected from the restored confidence in financial institutions, and from boosts in commodity prices. The steel industry viewed stiffened scrap prices hopefully. It rose 50 cents a ton in the Youngstown area today, after a rise earlier in the week at Pittsburgh. The weekly mercantile review of Dun and Bradstreet was decidedly optimistic. General Motors announced that it would increase production schedules Monday that were curtailed during the banking holiday. Some uncertainty was manifest in financial quarters over the farm relief bill in Washington, as its many proposals were found confusing at first glance.

Rails were bid up in expectation of better freight movement with the approach of spring, and in recollection of the fact that these issues had been leaders in the market in the weeks before the holiday. Sugars again were given professional attention, reflecting the better prices for raw sugar. Allied Chemical encountered some selling, in response to its 1932 earnings report showing net of $3.62 a share, which was somewhat less than expected in some quarters. The 1931 net was $6.74 a share.

WHEAT CLOSES WEAK, DOWN

CHICAGO, March 17.—Disturbed by uncertainties regarding effects of proposed farm legislation, wheat prices broke late today to well below yesterday's finish.

Among the late sellers were numerous concerns that bought on an early advance of 3 cents a bushel attributed largely to accumulated purchase orders which could not be filled yesterday. Selling pressure that followed the transient advance was checked only in part by announcement that the House Committee on Agriculture might rewrite and simplify the farm bill proposed by President Roosevelt.

Wheat closed weak, ¼-⅞ under yesterday's finish; corn ⅛-⅝ off; oats ¼-½ off and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to a rise of 5 cents.

WALL STREET SEES END OF DEFLATION

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 17.—The currency and banking readjustment has apparently checked the impulse on the part of individuals to achieve abnormal liquidity.

To the extent that the new viewpoint can be reconciled with reasonable confidence in the currency, genuine progress will have been made.

Mr. Rukeyser

The flight from securities, properties and commodities into money or its equivalent represented an effort to get out from under the normal business risks. Business, of course, cannot be conducted without risk, and the fashion for riskless repositaries of funds was inconsistent with vigorous and full employment of labor.

Economic processes will be accelerated to the extent that dammed up wealth again flows back through investment channels into the processes of business, which make for employment.

Speculators have already expressed an opinion that the end of the process of deflation is at hand.

BOLSTER BUYING POWER

President Roosevelt's emergency rehabilitation program includes not only improving the financial machinery through banking reform and improved governmental credit, but also bolstering up consumer purchasing power. Through re-employing in public activities part of the unemployed and through seeking to raise the exchange value of the products of farming, an effort will be made to augment consumer buying power, and thus raise the gross value of business.

There is increasing recognition that business cannot fruitfully go further in the direction of pruning expenses.

The salvation lies rather in increasing gross valume, thus enabling it to achieve the economies which come from mass production.

U. S. PRICES LEAD

In connection with tariff questions, an industrialist has made a survey of comparative costs at home and abroad. Out of 74 leading articles studied, all but two showed American prices to be substantially above foreign prices. He concluded:

"Unless American producers were making on the average a much higher rate of profit than the foreigners, there does not seem to be in this list of goods great opportunities for continuance of American industry.

"It is recognized that automobiles and certain machines produced in large volume are considered to be manufactured more cheaply in the United States than elsewhere, but no data are available for comparing costs of such articles.

"The simple truth is that our skill in industry makes up for a good deal of the differential between American wages and the low wages paid abroad, but by no means all of it. To protect this differential and preserve our standard of living, tariff protection is required for almost every article of manufacture."

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 17.—The Curb Market today experienced what traders described as a normal reaction following the sharp upward drive of the past two days. Price recessions were general, but volume tended to contract on the decline.

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00) omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

FEDERAL CREDIT U. S. ECONOMIC KEYSTONE

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, March 17.—The crux of our financial situation lies in government credit.

For a long time, the government has been running a deficit and the public debt has been piling up toward the war-time peak.

To a large extent, this has been due to the borrowing for farm relief and for the R. F. C., although current operating deficits have contributed.

To a large extent, therefore, the debt is the result of dumping on the Treasury the frozen loans remaining from the past over-extension of private business credit.

For example, the government issues bonds to raise funds for the R. F. C., which advances them to finance banks with frozen loans. Then the banks buy the government bonds! The great bulk of government bonds has become lodged in the banking system.

BILLIONS HELD

As a result, government credit, in the shape of bonds, has come to underlie our financial structure to a surprising extent.

Then consider our currency. Back of the Federal Reserve notes, lie mostly governmental bonds. Much the same can be said of the new Reserve Bank notes and the national bank notes.

SHOULD AVOID STRAIN

Thus it is absolutely essential to keep government credit sound and free from undue strain. In fact, the chief danger in the present situation which I can see is that something may be done to strain government credit. If that were to be overextended, the results as to our banking and currency system would be very serious.

We should therefore guard the Treasury well, and especially as to its borrowings. We must remember that the nation has a balance sheet as well as an income account.

NOT ALL NATIONAL

Some are making dangerous comparisons with the larger per capita debts of various foreign central governments. But note the following points:

1—Our federal government's debt is in reality piled on top of an enormous mass of state, county and local debt, which must be considered in any such comparisons.

2—Our debt, to an increasing extent, is not "funded;" it is short-term debt and therefore more pressing.

3—Our debt is tied up with our banking and monetary system to an unwise extent. For example, if our banks suspend, there is virtually no market for government bonds.

4—Probably there is more danger at present that our government may make unwise and wasteful uses of the proceeds of bond issues, and in the last analysis credit is apt to be just about as good as the use made of the funds secured.

SHOW NEED OF CAUTION

But these considerations merely emphasize the need of caution and the importance of (1) balancing the budget, and of (2) holding down the debt.

In fact, they emphasize the great gains that may result by strengthening government credit now. If we do that, government bonds will be really strong. Then the banks and insurance companies which hold the bonds will be strong, and the currency based on the bonds will be kept "as good as gold."

GRAIN FUTURES ACT UPHELD

CHICAGO, March 17.—(AP.)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the grain futures trading act yesterday and refused to interfere with the government requirements of daily reports on sales and purchases of grain.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co., and several other companies had sought an injunction preventing the grain futures administration and the Secretary of Agriculture from demanding the reports.

P. & G. Release Huge Advertising Award

NEW YORK, March 16.—Procter & Gamble, soap manufacturers, have swung in behind the President in his courageous effort to restore normal business by releasing a 3,000,000-line newspaper advertising campaign, it was announced by Thomas L. L. Ryan, president of Pedlar & Ryan, advertising counsel to the company. Mr. Ryan said that the fact that this new money has been released upon the most luxurious product Procter & Gamble own, is an evidence of level-headed confidence and a spirit of trust in the future of the country. Newspapers are being used in the campaign because of speed and mobility, Mr. Ryan stated.

Rails to Abolish Freight Pool Program

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP.)—The railroads have decided to abolish the pooling plan under which freight surcharges have been collected and distributed for the benefit of weaker carriers, it was learned following a meeting of the eastern railway presidents' conference yesterday.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 17.—The recent sweeping advance of the bond market showed signs of slowing down as various traders, deeming discretion the better part of valor, began cashing in some of their sizeable profits. The United States government list, while losing some of its previous enthusiasm, maintained a steady tone. The foreign section was somewhat unsettled by the noticeable weakness of the German group.

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Playgirls in Love

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXV.

The whole effect was rich, but at the same time, a little faded.

"As though Genevieve had known better days," thought Judith.

"A woman who throws her bonnet over the windmill is nothing but a darn fool——" Judith had read somewhere.

Suddenly, Genevieve seemed once again to come to life. She poured her guest a second glass of benedictine, and herself drank with her.

"Judith, I want you to do me a tiny favor."

"Why, of course, Genevieve, if I can."

"I want you to hand in a note—at the top floor of this building—I'll write it."

Genevieve got up from the couch with a slinky, graceful movement, and went over to the enormous secretary-desk.

RECOGNIZES PLACE

She wrote a few lines on several sheets of paper. Each time she tore them up.

Finally she blotted one—read it several times through—stuck it in an envelope, gummed it, and handed it to Judith.

"Will you go up to the top floor with this?"

There was no name on the envelope.

"That isn't necessary," Genevieve said testily, as though she had read Judith's thought. "There's but one apartment there. You've only got to knock on the door, and hand this to the butler. Tell him it's for his master."

"Very well," Judith rose, rather mystified.

"Slip on your coat and hat. Don't take the elevator. It's only three flights higher. Go up the back stairs. I don't want the gossiping servants to know my private business," Genevieve said.

Judith departed.

There was something familiar about that top landing, with its skylight showing a moonlit sky, its two small orange trees in tubs on either side of the door.

Judith wondered vaguely, hadn't she been here before?

The door opened, and the mystery was explained. There stood Hayasha, the inscrutable Japanese servant.

MEETS LORANDA

Judith handed him the envelope. She knew now that it was meant for the owner of the apartment, Lawton Clissold!

Judith turned quickly away as the door closed on Hayasha.

Was it her fancy, or was a contemptuous sarcasm on the slant-eyed face of the Oriental servant?

Did pretty ladies often call with billets-doux?

She felt a wave of anger against Genevieve.

She would not use those wretched back stairs any more. She would go down by the elevator.

Then the gates opened and, to Judith's utter astonishment, out stepped Loranda Tewson!

"Judith Brian, what are you doing here?" Loranda—very pretty, but now highly nervous—was the first to speak.

"I was delivering a note—for Genevieve," said Judith with dry lips.

AN AGONIZING STAB

And she was beautiful, was Loranda Tewson at this moment, in her wide-eyed amazement. She was in delicate spring gray, on her golden head a little helmet hat fashioned of green leaves, and a platinum fox fur swinging over one shoulder.

"You can go," she said to the elevator boy. "We'll call you when we want you. Handing in a note for Genevieve, were you?" she repeated to Judith when the boy had gone.

Judith's chin went up. "I came because Genevieve asked me to deliver a note. I'm not in the habit of visiting men's apartments alone—if that's what you're hinting at!"

Loranda flushed, bit her lip, hesitated. Then apparently she decided it would be better to placate Judith than to antagonize her.

"Since you feel that way—and you're darn right, Judith—let's not say anything about having seen each other here this evening."

"I've nothing to hide."

"Nor I. Only—you know—I mean you don't know—how jealous Barry is of me—"

This was an agonizing stab for Judith.

"I'll go now."

"Wait. Promise me, not a word of this to anybody?"

Judith looked with clear, honest eyes at her rival, and there was no outward sign of the misery in her soul.

Barry loved this girl! Judith, struggle against it as she would, loved Barry, too, with the whole of her tender, loyal heart—but his happiness came far ahead of her own.

JUDITH PUZZLED

She would do nothing to disillusion him about Loranda Tewson, if he loved her. She would never seek to take their happiness from him.

Loranda held out her hand. "You're a darn good sport, Judith. I'll trust you."

And suddenly a great courage came to Judith. "Loranda, are you playing square with him?" she asked, her lips now quite steady. "He—he's a splendid boy. He deserves the best—only the best this world can offer——"

"Of course I'm playing square with him! Why, I'm perfectly crazy about Barry!" Loranda answered quickly. She hesitated. "If you only knew it, it's on Barry's behalf I've run up here this evening!"

But Judith, wise with the keen intuition of love, knew that Loranda was lying . . .

What was Loranda doing in Lawton Clissold's apartment?

That query pressed in Judith's mind when she was back again with Genevieve.

Suddenly, Genevieve brought the subject of Loranda up!

"I loathe that girl! She's an unscrupulous, double-crossing cat!"

ACCUSES LORANDA

Genevieve's eyes were glaring oddly as she spoke.

"She's very fond of Barry," Judith forced herself to say, faintly. She wished a window were open . . . the room seemed to be suffocating her.

"Fond of him? Pah! Don't kid yourself; she's capable of loving anyone!"

Judith was about to say: "Why, she just told me so herself, not ten minutes ago"—but managed to keep the words back.

"Everyone knows he was crazy about you until that little scheming hell-cat butted in!"

"Scheming?" repeated Judith dully. The room seemed to recede, and the figure of Genevieve, with that venomenous expression in the eyes, seemed to grow larger and larger. . . .

"I said 'scheming' and I mean it." Genevieve replied tartly. "Why, everybody who isn't a moron knows that Loranda deliberately did something to the magneto of the engine of the boat the night Barry and she were "romantically" and 'compromisingly' stranded all night long on that mudbank! That girl knows all about motors. She always did! Funny, isn't it, that not until morning did she discover what was wrong with the engine?"

Judith stared at Genevieve in silence, her heart thudding.

"Of course she gave the magneto a twist! Your precious Barry's a dumbbell! With any other man she wouldn't have gotten away with it!"

Judith got up. "Why are you telling me all this, Genevieve?"

"Because I like you, and I want to help you to get Barry back. I'm going to tell you something that will bring him back to you, if you know how to use the information cleverly!"

Chlorine and hydrogene unite in the light. Intensive light causes explosion. Bunsen's Actinometer measures the intensity of rays. Vessel (l) partly filled with water is connected with bulb (i), which is also filled partly with water, by tube (k). (h) is a stop cock through which chlorine and hydrogen is pumped in equal volumes into the apparatus which is protected from light. The light is directed on bulb (i) and some of the gases will combine, forming hydrochloric acid, which is absorbed by the water. The volume of combined gases and with it the intensity of the photo-chamical action will be shown by the column of water moved into (k). (Laury: Hydrochloric Acid). (Chemistry).

A Postcard Is Answered

A reader bombs us with a querulous postcard inquiring why our officeholders require two months vacation in the summer and another month in the winter.

Now, sister, that requires some deep battle-scarred thought. We imagine that she is referring to the upper flight of politicians such as judges, mayors and their ilk.

We have usually thought of a year as being guaranteed not to shrink. But the officeholders manage to compress it to nine months through a series of neatly arranged vacations.

We can understand the summer vacation. We want to get out of the hot city. So do the politicians.

And the winter? The same reasons still holds for the officeholders. Very often the city is still hot for the boys.

If we were dearn or governor of a state we would not leave it for an atomized second. We would not want to let our constituents know that the works could run itself.

We would be at that desk at all times illustrating the majesty and power generated by the rise and fall of a rubber stamp.

We certainly wouldn't desert the populace when the winter breezikins were howling around the corners and the blizzards were tying traffic into a figure eight.

We would stay right at home. If the citizens suffer with us in the spring and fall we can surely suffer with them in February.

So, in case you ever elect The Bug to high and dizzy office you can be sure of him as an all-year round, weatherproofed annoyance.

The voting starts again right after the fruit and berry season and we may put our popularity to the test.

The result will probably be unanimous civic permission for us to spend 12 months any place we desire provided we keep moving and don't send back postcards asking why officeholders take two vacations. We thank you right from the third vest button.

Unemployment Relief

The National Forest Plan Will Help, But Additional Help Will Be Needed, and Needed Soon.

A Washington dispatch says President Roosevelt's unemployment relief program calls for putting idle men to work in the national forests.

The plan should be particularly interesting to Pittsburgh. There is a national forest within a few hours ride of the city—the Allegheny National Forest. It consists of 369,276 acres, of which 103,403 acres lie in Elk County, 92,106 in Forest County, 98,110 in McKean County, and 75,657 in Warren County.

The kind of work that the President is said to advocate, the reforestation of areas denuded of their timber, will fit perfectly in Pittsburgh's flood protection program.

The Allegheny National Forest and the Monongahela National Forest, which lies in West Virginia, were established at the suggestion of the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh. Lumbermen had removed the trees from the hills at the headwaters of the rivers. With the disappearance of the spongy humus of the forest floor rain and melting snow ran off too quickly and caused floods. Engineers reported that the restoration of the forests would provide a sort of reservoir in which excess water could be caught and given out slowly.

Replanting the barren acres in trees accordingly will directly benefit Pittsburgh in two ways—by aiding in flood protection and by furnishing jobs for idle men.

The unemployment relief plan of the Pittsburgh group headed by Edgar Kaufmann is making progress, and, if adopted, will take care of the needs of a much larger number.

In the meanwhile, however, an urgent necessity exists for a measure that will provide immediate relief.

Two million persons in Pennsylvania are now being fed by the state. No funds are in sight to carry on this work in April.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which has furnished most of the money used for unemployment relief in recent months, has notified Gov. Gifford Pinchot that "consideration of relief needs for April will await state legislative action." It has said it will give Pennsylvania no more money unless the state itself furnishes the major share of what is required.

Although a crisis is imminent the Legislature has done nothing.

Mr. Pecora's Good Work

His Exposure of Irregular Banking Methods Will Be of Immeasurable Value.

The announcement that the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency will shortly resume its investigation was expected.

With a new Congress it was necessary that the personnel of the committee should be reconstituted.

Senator Norbeck, a Republican, remains a member of the committee, but yields the chairmanship to Senator Fletcher, of Florida, its ranking Democratic member.

Gratifying also is the information that Ferdinand Pecora will continue as counsel to the committee.

In the three weeks of his active service as counsel of the committee, Mr. Pecora succeeded in silencing all criticism as to the committee's sincerity and the effectiveness of its investigation.

His examination of witnesses was fair but unsparing. With directness and true aim he went to the core of the matters under consideration and developed a panoramic picture of irregular banking methods which will be of immeasurable value as a guide to needed legislation.

It is stated that the committee proposes an exhaustive investigation of J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and similar types of banking and investment houses.

The relations between such houses and the institutional banks through stock control or representation upon their boards of directors constitute a legitimate subject of investigation.

Furthermore, many flotations in which the investing public has embarked heavily have been originated by the investment houses. An inquiry into the methods of these houses should throw much needed light upon the safeguards as well as the hazards of the public in its purchases of securities from the great distributing houses.

The intimation that the committee may not pursue its inquiry for the present into commercial banking does not, we hope, indicate that investigation in this field is at an end. This would make it appear, in the light of what already has been disclosed, that the committee has been a little disconcerted by its success.

Confidence is never helped by suppression. Suspicion will grow unless superseded by knowledge—the knowledge which thorough and impartial investigation alone reveals, and which is founded upon accurately determined facts.

Sales Tax Would Help

Unlike Income and Corporation Taxes, It Does Not Discriminate Against Efficiency.

With machine gun rapidity, President Roosevelt, in his messages to Congress, is laying down the foundation stones for sound economic rehabilitation.

His courageous message on economy in governmental expenses was followed by a recommendation urging the legalization of beer and other beverages. The Chief Executive asked for speedy action because excise taxes on such products would provide "a proper and much needed revenue for government."

The Hearst newspapers have long advocated the taxation of beer and wines as a means of raising necessary revenue in a painless manner.

In the transition to better times, the will to go forward can be strengthened by reforming the inequities and weaknesses of our tax system.

The same principle of taxation can be applied wisely THROUGH THE GENERAL MANUFACTURERS' SALES TAX, which has succeeded admirably through the vicissitudes of the business cycle in Canada and elsewhere.

Based on transactions, which fluctuate considerably less than business profits, the sales tax is productive of revenue even in periods of profitless commerce.

Furthermore, in its general incidence, the sales tax, unlike the present income and corporation taxes, does not discriminate against efficiency.

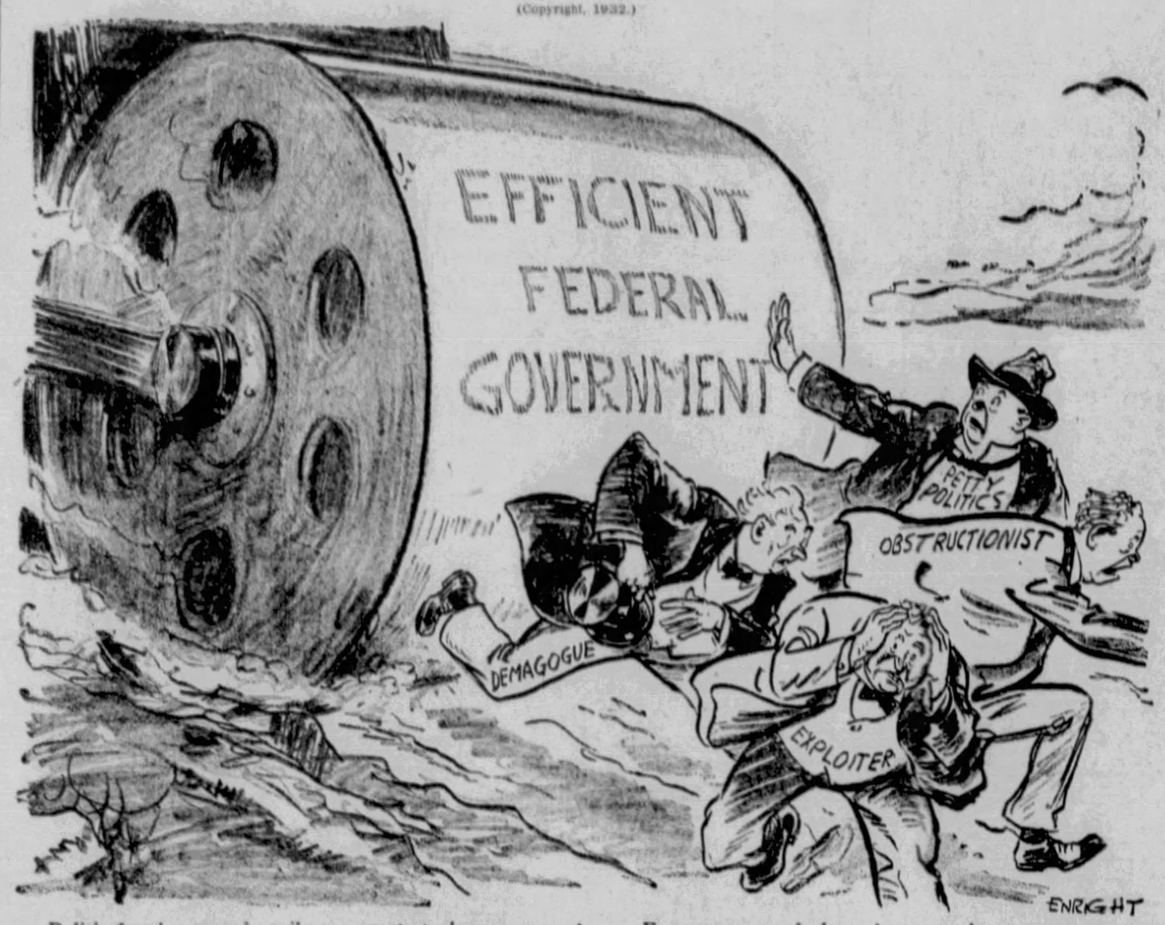
With the new leadership at Washington searching for new incentives for swelling economic activity, the opportunity for heartening employers of labor by substituting painless taxation for the existing inequitable and confiscatory income tax should not be overlooked.

Like the beer tax, the general manufacturers' sales tax would assure the inflow of funds to make possible the balancing of the budget.

The present period of transition is the psychological moment for the thoroughgoing revamping of our federal tax structure.

Juggernaut

(Copyright, 1932.)



Political and economic evils are greatest when government is weakest. All history proves that.

Good government is necessarily strong government. Existing by consent of the governed to serve the public weal, strong government abolishes the old evils of weak government and checks the growth of new evils.

Once again, America has a strong government at Washington.

Emergency needs have been met by emergency measures.

After the emergency must come permanent constructive measures, which only a strong government can achieve.

And every loyal American will support every good measure that the Federal Government proposes for the benefit of all the people.

Inventory

The world counts these: my house, my land,
The shining gold I have in store,
The jewel gleaming on my hand,
And nothing more.

And so, no doubt, is right and just
In listing thus the properties
I hold in trust.

And yet the world is blind, I fear,
For, strangely, it has failed to see
The other things which are more dear
By far, to me.

A tender love, an honest faith,
A trust that lives for me alone
And will be steadfast until death;
All these I own.

The world has never glimpsed or guessed,
In spite of all it thought it knew,
The treasures which I have possessed
My whole life through.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, March 17.—Thoughts while strolling: So many celebrities seem to be coming out in lavender. That milk-white limousine with gold doors. Isaac Marcosson's barber shop glow. Something about Osgood Perkins suggests Adolphe Menjou. Whatever became of Dorothy Knapp?

Bernard Gimbel, a Vincennes (Ind.) boy, who made good in the city. Three rent evictions in a block. Carl Helm, the expert on libel. No one ever sees former Mayor Hylan, who used to be as omnipresent as Louis Wiley. Save for a feather of gray, Irene Castle looks as she did 15 years ago.

One word description of Helen Kane—pouty. New York's collegiate-looking sheriff. Rather see a wide hat and drooping mustache. Will Lengel could almost pass for Hitler. Anyway they have not shorn Charles M. Schwab of his lapel flower.

George Eichelberger always seems galloping to a fire, or something. What happened to the American Press Humorists? One of my favorite people—Rita Weiman. A serenity about the old Hotel Gotham. Ted Saucier, the Waldorf's natty glossarian. And Peggy Fears in a toque of flaming red.

Maury Paul, whose critical gusto nips the climbers. That grand gentleman, Charles Dana Gibson, still walks as straight as an arrow. I am beginning to feel about the depression like the French Abbe, who, asked what he did during the revolution, replied: "I lived through it!" Or have I?

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Would you send your son to jail?

Suppose you had a boy—an idolized child—for whom you'd struggled and sacrificed through lonely, widowed years.

And suppose, when that boy was 18, working at his first job, that he "lifted a little change" from the cashier's desk.

A hideous blow! But you said to yourself—"He's only a child. Surely his employer will forgive if I ask him for leniency and return the money."

So you did—and forgiveness was granted. And the boy, shocked and sobbing, promised it would never happen again.

But then suppose the boy, now 19, began running about with an extravagant, madcap girl, who demanded more fun than the boy could give her—

But this time by forgery. A small sum, but it put him within reach of the law.

Yet you could still save him if you made restitution, as the boy, mad with terror, begged you to do.

Would you do it?

OR WOULD YOU REFUSE TO HELP?

WOULD YOU HARDEN YOURSELF AGAINST HIS PITIFUL PLEADING; STEEL YOURSELF AGAINST THE ANGUISH OF YOUR OWN MOTHER LOVE—

AND SEND YOUR CHILD TO JAIL?

An awful dilemma? Yes. But an American mother is facing that dilemma today. As you sit reading these questions, she is pacing back and forth in a frenzy of despair, trying to find their answers. This is the true story of her only son, and the hours in which she may save him are swiftly passing. What shall she do?

She has turned to her friends for help. Some way she must have him, at any cost, and her own heart dictates that course. But others say that if she saves him again from paying the penalty of his crime she will ruin him for life. Will she?

In anguish she wrote to a certain paper, asking us to help her. Her letter was published. Scores of answers were received.

The writers, like her friends, took both pro and con stands, but most of them were emphatically AGAINST sending a 19-year-old boy to jail.

They admitted that he needed some sort of punishment; but they pointed out a tragic fact which we all know: In the state penitentiary that boy would be forced to associate with mature criminals. He would, according to the admission of prison wardens themselves, come out more vicious than he went in. What decent end, then, would be served by imprisoning him?

Still that poor mother cannot decide. She begs us to publish her story once more, giving it wider publicity. So, in a last effort to find some answer which will help her through this tragic hour, we are broadcasting in this column her cry for help. And, that you may judge the quality of the advice already given, we publish the following letter, previously received:

Dear Miss Robinson:

The letter of Mrs. Mary Albright has caused me to recall the similar plight of another mother. Her son, having been pampered and protected, was well on the road to self-destruction. Then that son's protecting angels passed away; his older brother fell heir to the task of keeping this young good-for-nothing in line. He did, and the young man is well on the straight and narrow road to being a useful citizen.

Mrs. Albright should not intercede for her young scoundrel. For that purpose, we have courts. Our judges have a humane as well as a legal sense, and I am sure that this is a case beyond any action she could take. It is a case for the courts to decide.

The case should be permitted to follow the regular legal procedure. The young man should be arrested; should be jailed if he is unable to raise bail HIMSELF. The longer he is kept in jail before his trial the better.

After this young man's trial and ultimate conviction, then that is the mother's time to act. Let her make a plea to the court for probation for her son. I am sure the judge, if he thinks there is a chance of kindling that spark of decency in her son, will grant him probation, provided he makes restitution of his own efforts.

There is another thing. The mother should be warned not to have her son put in her custody during his probationary period. Let the regular probation officer be his custodian. This solution is her only chance. This is the time to make or break her son.

It has worked, and has brought another to realize that the world owes him a living but that it also requires that he work for it. This method guided another young man's destiny. I don't see why it would not operate in this case.

JAMES VANBUREN.

Do you agree with that letter?

If it were your son—or your "kid brother"—or your sweetheart—or your husband—would you send him to jail?

Millions of people sitting in their homes all across the continent Sunday night listening to a report from the head of the nation on just what had been done during the week on the banking situation, what would be done in the next week, and the reasons, must have been impressed with a realization that things have changed.

President Roosevelt made no speech. He merely talked conversationally just as though he were sitting across the table in language that everyone could understand. Thus did he bring home to millions the fact that this is their government and exists for their protection. In banking matters for too many years explanations have been made to very small and select groups of financiers; it was something new to have the head of the nation making his report to all the people in their homes.

Nothing contributed more to the recent panic of fear than the mystery that surrounded the banking situation. Rumors were afloat, many without foundation. But to the vast majority of the people there seemed something sinister in the silence and the lack of action.

Then came action—decisive, courageous, open.

And then came a break in the silence, with a President sitting in the White House and explaining to you and me just what it is all about.

That is the sort of thing that makes for confidence.

We Get Back to Solid Ground as Fear Passes

It was a happy thought which impelled the President to this action. Manifestly it is impossible for the Government to know in a day the precise condition of every bank in the country. Impossible for it to pass on the applications of them all for permission to reopen in a day. It is a matter that takes time.

But there was danger that the bank that does not open on the first or second day may be suspected by its depositors to be in a bad condition, leading to a run when it does reopen. It was necessary to explain that there is no justification for the conclusion that banks not yet open are not perfectly sound.

And this—the moment a bank opens it carries the proclamation of the Government that it is perfectly sound; and being perfectly sound there can be no justification for the slightest fear of depositors for their money.

The soundest bank in the world cannot meet all its obligations in a day or a week. The depositors' money has been loaned, and it takes time for a general liquidation. It is a very happy thing for the country when this money of the depositors is loaned, for then it is at work making for business and prosperity. The trouble has been that too much of the depositors' money has been in the bank during the last year or so, and industry that might have put men to work has been crippled.

But it is not all due to the meanness of some bankers; they have feared that the people, in fear, would demand their money, and they were keeping it on hand to meet a possible extraordinary demand.

When the fear passes from the people it will pass from the banks and we will be getting back to the solid ground of common sense.

Paragraph from President's Talk

One paragraph from the President's talk cannot be too much impressed on the public mind:

"Remember that no sound bank is a dollar worse off than it was when it closed its doors last Monday. Neither is any bank which may turn out not to be in a position for immediate opening. The new law allows the 12 Federal Reserve Banks to issue additional currency on good assets, and thus the banks that reopen will be able to meet every legitimate call."

It was helpful to have from the President this assurance:

"Please let me make it clear to you that if your bank does not open the first day, you are by no means justified in believing that it will not open. A bank that opens on one of the subsequent days is in exactly the same status as the bank that opens tomorrow (Monday)."

It was helpful, too, to reassure those whose deposits are in state banks not members of the Federal Reserve System:

"There is no occasion for worry. These banks can and will receive assistance from member banks and from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation."

Nor will there be occasion for panic where some banks may be found in need of reorganization before opening:

"The new law allows the government to assist in making these reorganizations quickly and effectively, and even allows the government to subscribe to at least a part of any new capital that may be required."

Will Expose Gold Hoarders

Thus we are well upon the road to a reorganization of the banking system for the better protection of the people; and in the meanwhile, the government, and not these bankers whose vicious banking practices have caused the trouble, is in charge.

President Roosevelt, however, gives this warning:

"Let me make it clear to you that the banks will take care of all needs—except, of course, the hysterical demands of hoarders—and it is my belief that hoarding during the past week has become an exceedingly unfashionable pastime."

Meanwhile, the time allowed for gold hoarders to return the gold has been extended a few days; and it is to be hoped that at the end of the period those who have refused to co-operate with their country in a crisis will be exposed by name.

The public is not so much concerned over the little man who hoarded $500 as over the big man who hoarded $500,000. If the big man had not begun the fashion the little man would not have thought of it.

'Action—and Action Now'

This week the Economy bill which passed the House must pass the Senate. There may be some opposition, is certain to be, but in the light of the absolute necessity there can be no possible justification for its defeat.

There is no group or element in this country today that is bigger than the country.

There may be a few thousand or scores of thousands who are willing to wreck the nation to satisfy themselves, but there are millions who have no patience with that attitude today. They will have no more patience with politicians who play short sighted and poor politics with the nation's crisis.

The time has come for "action—and action now."

The Nation Comes First

For conditions and times have changed. This is a new era. The old is dead. It died of poison its greed had created.

When a great figure in the financial world like Mr. Aldrich proposes drastic reforms in banking practices for the advocacy of which in these columns we have been dubbed a demagogue for two years we have striking evidence of the fact that a new day has dawned.

And that means a new day in politics, in that it means that hereafter the interests of a part must be subordinated to the interest of the whole.

It means that in this crisis the nation comes first.

This is a war for the salvation and upbuilding of a nation, and the country will not stand for sabotage in the midst of this crisis any more than it would stand for it when the guns are roaring on a battlefield.
